CAPTURED RUM-RUNNER BEING TOWED INTO BOSTON

At top schooner Grace Hilda, of Lunenburg, N. S., one of the ships lying off Cape Ann when Revenue Cutter Tampa made a wholesale raid on fishermen landing Christmas booze. Though the schooner was loaded with liquor she was not seized, as the raiders failed to catch her in the act of supplying any contraband to the others. Photo shows cases of booze on the schooner's deck. Below, a string of the captured motor boats being towed into port by the Tampa. Six boats of this type were caught in the raid. These exclusive pictures were snapped from the Tampa while the raids in progress.

RADIO FANS WIN NEW VICTORY

Radio Corporation of America Bans Use of 450 Length Between 7 and 11 P. M.

The Boston American has scored another victory in the fight against code interference to radio broadcasting.

The Radio Corporation of America, which controls more radio stations than any other company in the world, has issued instructions to all operators under its control to cease use of 450 meters during the broadcasting hours from 7:00 to 11:00 p. m. local time.

This marks the biggest single step forward in the elimination of code interference.

Recently the American was able to announce that the United Fruit Co. had issued orders against the use of 450 meters by stations under its control.

Broadcast listeners should begin to notice at once a considerable diminution in the amount of code interference to radio broadcasting.

Following is the text of the letter to the Boston American concerning the recent action of the Radio Corporation:

"From time to time I have noticed with interest the campaign you are conducting with a view of reducing interference experienced in the reception of radio telephone broadcast programs.

"I am sure you will be interested

WOMAN LEAPS TO DEATH IN RIVER

Bangor, Me., Dec. 20.—Harriet Hitchborn was successful today in her third attempt to take her life.

Cutting a screen away from a window in the Hyland Sanitorium, she fashioned a rope made of bed clothing, then slid down it to the frozen ground.

Then she ran to the bridge that separates Bangor from Brewer and plunged into the Penobscot River. Somewhere under the ice reposes her body.

She was fifty years old, member of a wealthy and prominent family of Stockton Springs. Once in Portland she threw herself under a street car but was saved from death. Again in Boston she sought her life by means of a pistol. The effort was frustrated.

Why Harriet Hitchborn sought death no one ever knew. Her brother Charles Hitchcock is prominent in the State.

The drama she staged with her life today was preceded by con-

MRS. FORD KEEPS HENRY OUT OF RACE

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 20. — Mrs. Henry Ford is the reason Henry Ford has decided he will not be a candidate for the Presidency in 1924 on any ticket.

This announcement was made here today by the Rev. William Dawes, president of the Ford for President Club of Dearborn, Ford's home town. He said:

"From the first time the President-makers of Dearborn in and out of the Ford organization began to exploit the candidacy of their favorite son, Mrs. Ford has privately declared that she does not want her husband to enter the lists.

HOGAN TOOK $300, JURY FINDS

Cambridge Official Accused in Scandal Over Granting of Building Removal Permit

William M. Hogan, Cambridge Councilman, was found guilty by a jury in East Cambridge Court today of bribery charges.

He was accused of accepting $300 from Abe Hyde, Cambridge slipper manufacturer, to obtain him a permit from the City Council to remove a building Hyde had purchased on Winsor street last July.

John H. Regan, treasurer of the Cambridge Lodge of Elks, was named as the go-between. He testified he paid Hogan the money.

William M. Hogan

In defense Hogan produced witnesses who testified that the day he was alleged to have received the bribe he was in the United States Veterans' Bureau in Boston.

The jury was out three hours Wednesday night. They returned a sealed verdict today to Judge Sisk.

The date of the passing of the bribe money was named as July 11.

CUTTER CAPTURES 6 BOSTON RUM SHIPS

Six Boston Italian fishing boats captured off Thatcher's Island, Cape Ann, by the United States Coast Guard Cutter Tampa, were towed into Boston harbor with approximately 10,000 gallons of alcohol and choice Christmas liquors aboard.

The fishing boats are said to have been plying between Boston and a large Belgian steamship carrying a liquor cargo of 300,000 gallons of contraband when it steamed into American waters a few weeks ago.

The Belgian operated first off the Jersey Highlands, and then off the New England coast.

SENATORS IN GRAFT CHARGE INQUIRY

Washington, Dec. 20 (By Universal). — Sensational charges that postoffice appointments have been sold to the highest bidder by persons representing themselves as agents of the administration caused an uproar in an Executive session of the Senate.

The charges, made by senators from Southern states, who declared "upon their honor" that nominations now before the Senate for confirmation had been paid for, were indignantly denied by Republican defenders of the administration.

Those making the charges were challenged by the Republican leaders to submit their proofs to the Senate. It was stated that such proofs would be forthcoming. As a result, all nominations from the Southern states were laid aside after a three-

BANDIT ROBS 3 PASSENGERS ON CRACK 'LIMITED' TRAIN

Milwaukee, Dec. 20.—A bandit aboard the Pioneer Limited, crack train of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad, robbed four passengers of $573 as it was nearing this city.

After the four men had handed over their money the bandit backed out of the car and dropped off.

GIRL ELOPES WITH "RICH OLD MAN"

Declaring she would rather be married to an old man with wealth than to a man of her own age who has only a salary, Julia Frances Alberta Jordan, twenty years old, No. 29 Regent street, North Cambridge, eloped to Providence with Lester S. Rowes, fifty-two years old, a widower, of No. 256 Salem street, Medford.

The couple filed marriage intentions in Providence Saturday morning, and were to have been married early today. Then, according to Mrs. Hannah Jordan, the girl's mother, they were to leave for an extended honeymoon in Florida.

Rowes came into a modest fortune

SPRACKLIN, INDICTED, HAS DISAPPEARED

Ernest B. Spracklin, for many years manager of the Copley Square Hotel, who disappeared just before he was indicted with twelve others in the Boston Blackmail ring, is reported to have named Attorney John P. Feeney as his personal counsel, to represent him.

Attorney Feeney is expected to provide bail for Spracklin in the next day or two.

Inspector John Mitchell today got in touch with Charles H. Innes, counsel for the Copley Square Hotel, and was assured that Spracklin would appear in a day or two.

Another disclosure today related to the fact that there are two indictments against Spracklin, one returned last week charging him with conspiring to extort money from persons unknown, and the other, also charging him with conspiracy, secretly returned by the Grand Jury a month ago, just before the interruption of the trial of William J.

FIVE HURT AS AUTO OVERTURNS

Five men were injured when an automobile overturned on the Salem-Boston turnpike at the Revere-Saugus town line today. Francis Fox, Central place, Cliftondale, and Howard Upton, 18 Pearl street, Lynn, were pinned beneath the car. The other three, occupants of the rear seat, were John Flynn of No. 15 Arlington street, Lynn, and Thomas Watson of 14 Arlington street and Charles Craven of Lynnhurst. The car was demolished.

SEIZE TRUCKLOAD OF ALCOHOL AND TWO MEN IN DANVERS

Danvers, Dec. 20.—Patrolman Raymond F. Kerwin saw a suspicious looking truck, heavily laden, coming from the waterfront today, chased it in a commandeered automobile and overhauled it near the Peabody line.

He seized the truck and its load, which he found to consist of 1,200 gallons of alcohol in cans, and arrested the two men who were transporting it. They gave their names as George D. Griffin and Leonard Sheehan, both of Peabody.

GAY LIFE ABOARD BIG RUM SHIP LYING OFF BOSTON HARBOR

SIX LIQUOR BOATS ARE CAUGHT

Here the monotony of the sailors while the ship idles off the New England coast.

An orchestra provides music for the nightly dances.

This is the information given by a Boston bootlegger who, through bootleg politics, has been excluded from trading with the Belgian.

Two of the six fishermen were captured after a chase of several miles. After they were taken in tow, three others were captured, and then the sixth was captured.

The crews of the fishing boats, believed to total about twelve men, are under guard aboard the Tampa.

The six prizes and the Tampa made fast at Rowes Wharf, from where the contraband is being transported today to the U. S. Appraiser's office off Atlantic avenue.

The Tampa received word of the operations of the Belgian steamship and for the past two weeks has been observing the operations of the smaller boats and of the Belgian.

Efforts have been made to trap the Belgian within American waters. Although it is known to have operated within the three-mile limit, no coast guard cutter has actually seen the vessel within the twelve-mile limit.

The fishermen were observed to go out to the larger boat and load cargoes of liquor. The Tampa awaited off Cape Ann for their return and made the captures after the smaller vessels had returned to within the three-mile limit.

The cargo of the Belgian is being handled through the Boston office of a large liquor syndicate, it was learned from creditable sources.

The modus operandi is simple; the man wishing to purchase liquor from the Belgian goes to the Boston office and pays cash for the contraband. Checks or other forms of legal tender are not acceptable.

In return for the money, the purchaser is given a paper understanding able only to the captain of the Belgian and those having knowledge of the special code used. He is also informed what the pass signal will be on the day or night the liquor is to be transferred from the Belgian.

The pass signal or countersign changes every twelve hours and is never duplicated. No names, dates or places appear on the paper given as a receipt for the money.

This system, according to men engaged in the illicit liquor traffic, protects every man in the liquor ring with the exception of the owners and crew of the small boats that carry the liquor to shore.

HOW PATROLMAN RECEIVED FATAL WOUND

SCENE OF SHOOTING AND PRINCIPALS

POLICE OFFICER SHOT FATALLY, NEGRO HELD

Mrs. Edward Sheldon, wife of Patrolman Sheldon of Roxbury Crossing Station, an expectant mother, is being kept in ignorance of the fact that her husband was shot and is dying at the City Hospital.

Patrolman Sheldon was shot down when he attempted to rescue a colored girl from an unwelcome suitor at No. 78 Williams street, Roxbury.

The alleged assailant of the patrolman, Harry Capleton, of No. 7 McLellan street, Roxbury, a negro, was arrested at his home after a chase from the scene of the shooting. He was taken to the City Hospital and identified by Patrolman Sheldon as his assailant. He is charged with assault with intent to kill.

According to the police, Capleton, alias Lewis, attempted to force unwelcome attentions on Miss Jessie Anderson, colored, of No. 78 Williams street. It was while he was visiting there that Capleton became involved in a struggle with the girl's father after the latter warned him to keep away from the girl.

The police were informed of the disturbance and Patrolman Sheldon, Sergeant Michael Hartnett and Patrolman John Hall went to the address and tried to break down a barricaded door. A bullet crashed through the door and entered Sheldon's body.

Immediately after the shooting Capleton leaped from a side window of the house and was chased by the police to his home. There he was captured after the police had broken down a door.

Patrolman Sheldon is twenty-seven years old and lives at No. 3 Glendale terrace, Jamaica Plain, with his wife and "Queen months' old child. He served in the navy as a chief petty officer during the war. He was appointed to the police force more than four years ago. He worked on the night shift, but had been assigned recently to the day shift.

COUNCILMAN HOGAN GUILTY

On the night before the City Council had met and the permit to allow Hyde to remove the building had been granted.

Frederick H. Burke, Cambridge city clerk, testified that he had handed the permit to Regan, following the meeting. Regan said that next morning, in Capitol square, he received the permit from Councilor Regan and gave Hogan $500.

Hogan, in defense, maintained he spent all of the morning in the Boston Yeterans' Bureau, so he could not have received the bribe, and also that after the removal permit was granted a bribe would have been unnecessary.

Hogan and Regan were Summer neighbors, at Nantasket Beach. There Hyde met Hogan through Regan. All were brother Elks. In his testimony the Cambridge slipper manufacturer said Hogan demanded money to interest himself in procuring Hyde the removal permit. Obtaining of the permit was urged as Hyde faced a fine unless the building was removed from the Winsor street plot before a certain date.

Hogan was defeated for re-election to council this Fall. He is a veterans' bureau.

Regan, before testifying, demanded and received immunity in his share of the $500 transaction.

to know that we have issued instructions to all RCA costal stations to the effect that no traffic whatever shall be received on 450 meters or any other wavelength below 600 meters between the hours of 7 and 11 p. m., local time.

"Orders have been issued to all ship stations under control prohibiting the use of 450 meter wavelength in transmitting traffic to costal stations or to other ships between the hours mentioned.

"The Radio Corporation of America recently permanently closed its old established coastal stations at New London Ct., and Nasconset, Mass., the service formerly performed by these stations having been taken over by our continuous wave and interrupted continuous wave 600 and 706 meter stations at Chatham Mass. The Chatham station is the most modern coastal station in America and its transmission causes no interference whatever to the reception of our broadcast programs.

"We have also permanently discontinued the use of spark apparatus at our Boch terminal station, and all operations at this station will, in the future, be carried on through the use of CW and ICW transmitters.

"It is the policy of the Radio Corporation of America to minimize in every feasible way the interference caused through the operation of spark apparatus on ships or on shore.

"Very truly yours,

"T. M. Stevens,

"Assistant Traffic Manager."

The interference log of the Boston American monitor station operator for last night showed a very considerable reduction of interference. Most of this was caused by a Dutch vessel, some by a couple of Independent Wireless Telegraph Co. ship operators, and only one Radio Corporation operator was logged, the latter simply sent the message, "I will call you later, when there is less interference."

On January 9, Radio Inspector Kolster, for the New England District, and Radio Inspector Batchelor for the New York District, will confer with all the large ship owners and radio companies in New York in an attempt to place a definite and conclusive end to all remaining interference to radio broadcasting by code interference.

GRAFT CHARGE INVOLVES SENATORS

Washington, Dec. 20.—Through investigation by the House Rules Committee of conditions in the Philippines and of Governor-General Leonard Wood's administration is proposed in a resolution drafted by Representative Frear, Republican, Wisconsin.

Discussing the need of a searching inquiry, Frear declares that Congress should make a full report "of any Senators, Representatives or other public officials who have received money to influence their attitude toward Philippine independence as repeatedly charged."

The resolution calls attention to dispatches published last May in various American newspapers in which it was declared Governor-General Wood had in his possession a list of names of Senators, Representatives and others prominent in Washington social life who received payment from the Philippine Independence Commission."

DEMANDS PROBE.

Representative Frear quotes dispatches, cabled from Manila, which referred to alleged misconduct on the part of some American and insular government officials. In conclusion, the Wisconsin representative makes this proposal to the House:

"That the Rules Committee of the House is instructed to investigate and report to the House as soon as possible all allegations as herein set forth relating to the truth or falsity of the Manila cablegrams, the actions of Governor Wood in relation to the Philippine government, its legislation, its banks, its railway sugar centrals and efforts, if any, to exploit the island by American commercial interests, the deposit of Philippine government money in American banks, the facts regarding a Filipino stable government and any other matters proper for a full report thereon to aid Congress in preparing any remedial legislation."

1924 CAMPAIGN.

Frear also asserts that the investigation he proposes "should disclose what valid objection, if any, exists against having the American Congress now declare the Philippine Islands out of pairs ought to be free and independent."

Attention is called to the row which developed recently between Governor-General Wood and various insular government officials and culminated in the resignation of the latter, and reference is made to Governor-General Wood's administration in Cuba and to the presidential campaign conducted in his behalf in 1920.

HIGH SCHOOL BOY EXPELLED, STUDENTS THREATEN STRIKE

Lancaster, N. H., Dec. 20.—Thirty-six members of the senior class at Lancaster High School headed by seventeen-year-old Donald Willoughby, held a meeting and decided to start a school strike tomorrow as a protest against the expulsion of Delaney Keeney, a classmate.

The seniors claim that Mrs. Hudson, their teacher asked Keeney to stop whistling in class the other day and that the whistling ceased. Mrs. Hudson says it did not stop and she reported the boy to Headmaster Allen McGurdy, who sent the lad home. Then the master wrote a letter to Keeney's parents and suggested the boy stop attending school as he was backward in his studies and was not going to graduate.

SMUGGLERS REAP HARVEST FROM ALIENS ALONG BORDER

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Dec. 20.—Twenty to forty dollars per head is the fare smugglers along the Niagara frontier collect from aliens seeking illegal entrance into the United States.

Business was said to be brisk. Hundreds of aliens stranded in Canada, with the filling of the American immigration quotas, are willing to pay in advance for passage. The transportation is equally profitable for the smuggler, regardless of his success or failure in penetrating the customs lines. He gives no refund when his charges are caught.

At Youngstown, on the lower river, where the smugglers' hazards are increased by the proximity of Fort Niagara and the contraband station, the quoted price on good authority is $40. At Lewiston, further up the river, it drops to $20.

four wrangle in which partisan feeling was at a high pitch. Nominations from many other states were confirmed.

SLAP AT SLEMP.

Specifically, the charges were directed against recent appointments sent from the White House to postmasterships in South Carolina and Virginia. Only a few days ago, a list of forty-two postmasters named in Virginia was sent to the Senate, and was commented upon at the time by Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi as indicative that C. Bascom Slemp, former representative from Virginia, and now President Coolidge's secretary, was "functioning," despite the fact that Congress had been unable to perfect organization.

So when these nominations were reached in the executive session, a Senator from one of the Southern States addressed his colleagues with the direct announcement that "practically every one of the postoffice appointments in the Southern States was sold." He was followed by another Southern Senator, who charged that nominations on the Virginia list were likewise bartered and paid for.

IN BITTER ROW.

Other Senators took up the charges, with the result that what was intended by Republican leaders to be a perfunctory session to confirm appointments was quickly transformed into a place of pandemonium as Southern members repeated their charges and Republicans angrily denied them.

Executive sessions of the Senate are closely guarded, but from what could be learned of Wednesday's tempestuous session the controversy grew so warm that supporters of the appointees were finally compelled to postpone attempts to obtain confirmation until a later session.

IZZY'S RENT IS BOOSTED $2; NOW HE'S AFTER LANDLORDS

New York, Dec. 20.—Izzy Einstein, noted national campaigner against liquor, threatens a new war on landlords.

Izzy, home from a liquor-seizing tour which took him to various parts of the country, was greeted with open arms, tears of joy and bad news at his three-room flat on the East Side.

The rent, his wife said, had been raised from $14 to $16 a month and they would have to pay or be put out. When Izzy began thinking of that $2 increase there wasn't any holding him.

"Sixteen dollars a month," he wailed. "I ask you can I afford to live on Riverside Drive? Together with the bootleggers and rubber landlords I lead a precarious existence. The country is sick of both of them.

"I will pay only $14 a month and I won't be put out, I'm telling you."

GIRL AND 'RICH OLD MAN' ELOPE

three years ago through the death of an aged aunt. He is the father of two children, one twelve years old and the other fourteen.

Recently the Jordans moved to their present home from Lexington, where their home had been sold.

"I'm going to marry Lester and live in a regular house, where there are servants and steam heat," the girl told her mother.

"I would rather marry an old man with plenty of money than a young man with only a salary, even if the old man were ugly and the young man were the handsomest man in the world."

Mrs. Jordan has persistently opposed her daughter's infatuation for Rowes, and has argued that her daughter will find her hands full when she becomes the step-mother of two children. The only answer the mother has received to this objection was that her daughter loved Rowes' children.

According to Mrs. Jordan, the couple met while her daughter was riding to a place of former employment on the car operated by Rowes. She believes the courtship was mostly conducted on the front platform of the car, since Rowes has never appeared at the Jordan home, according to Mrs. Jordan, the girl told intimate friends she was going to elope to Providence with Rowes, and that they were to spend the rest of the Winter in Florida.

"If they really get married, I shall not know whether to try to have the marriage annulled, or to forgive them and give them my blessing," Mrs. Jordan told the American. "It's hard to believe they will get along together. Julia is twenty years old and weighs ninety pounds; Mr. Rowes is fifty-two years old and weighs at least 145 pounds. And they differ just as widely in every other point of comparison."

ASK MORE TO TRAIN U.S. RESERVE OFFICERS

Washington, Dec. 20.—A movement to have Congress increase appropriations for the training of army reserve officer from $2,907,640 to $6,148,120 was launched today by the Reserve Officers' Association under the personal direction of John Rose Delafield of New York, president of the association.

In a letter to the 80,000 reserve officers, General Delafield said the budget recommendation of approximately $3,800,000 is "not enough to secure adequate training for the reserve officers to keep them fitted for the great responsibilities that will fall to them in time of war."

Ford for Coolidge That's Big News But Women Change Siki and a White Man

Current Events

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1923, Star Co.

ASSUMING this to be correct, it's the biggest political news you have read in a year or two.

Henry Ford announces that he is for Coolidge for President, and therefore out of the race himself.

"HENRY FORD for Coolidge" not only rolls a rock out of Mr. Coolidge's political path—nobody can say how many Republican farmers would vote for Ford—it also means adding to Mr. Coolidge's strength the strength of Henry Ford.

It's big political news.

MR. FORD is quoted thus: "Ninety per cent. of the people feel perfectly safe with Coolidge, and I feel, too, that the country is perfectly safe with him. If this is the feeling of the country, why change?"

If Mr. Ford said that and sticks to it, the job of Mr. Coolidge's competitors becomes much tougher.

MRS. VETTER married without telling her past. Just before the baby was born she told. Later she and her husband killed the other man.

Now lady writers tell Mrs. Vetter what she should have done, and unite on this:

"Tell the man ALL before you marry. Or if you marry WITHOUT telling, keep your mouth shut forever."

THAT'S EASY to say. Modern "gland" specialists, and ordinary common sense, tell you that after marriage, and especially before the birth of a child, a woman becomes completely changed in character, feeling and thought.

What she determined to do about keeping her sin to shut forever before she married fades from her mind when it is fastened upon her duty to a child unborn.

MR. SIKI, black prizefighter from Senegal, is arrested, trying to distribute $700 among strangers, the generosity due to alcoholic disorder. Siki was "exquisitely dressed," highly perfumed, and wore a single eyeglass in his eye.

White men, at that, will smile supercilliously.

YESTERDAY, about 1 p. m., in the barber shop of a most fashionable hotel, one white man was stretched out, his face, all over and head completely covered with soft clay.

The barber with an electric pump was pumping hot air on the clay to dry it.

"That draws out all the impurities from the skin," said the next barber.

AFTER THE clay had been peeled off, the white man's face was rubbed with ordinary cold cream. Then it was massaged thoroughly with "vanishing cold cream." And then the gentleman paid $1.25 and went his way rejoicing, convinced that he had improved his complexion.

Of the two, the black prize fighter, perfumed, drunk, and distributing cash, seems the more respectable.

A VERY little man with black skull cap, a white striped shawl around his shoulders, kneeled praying in the public street, carrying a sign "To cleanse your soul you must stare into the face of the sun."

He went to the workhouse for "disorderly conduct."

THERE was a feeble echo of the great Zoroaster, Nietzsche's Zarathustra, whose philosophy, perverted, a thousand years before Christ, was the foundation of sun worship and fire worship.

On this occasion Ahriman and the Power of Darkness won. But Ormzud is never completely beaten. Let that comfort the little preacher in his workhouse troubles.

PRESBYTERIAN clergymen also now rise against the letter of the ancient belief, questioning the authenticity of miracles, the Virgin birth, the bodily resurrection.

Wouldn't it be a good idea to postpone these discussions, at least until after Christ's birthday? That he was the Son of God was proved in a thousand ways in his lifetime and has been proved for nearly two thousand years since. That ought to be enough.

EACH DAY has its "biggest hotel on earth." Today it is a $32,000,000 hotel with 2,000 rooms, thirty-two stories high, to be built in Chicago. At the rate of Chicago's growth, that will be out of date and rebuilt probably, while Samuel Insull is still running Chicago opera.

Wife of "Bathtub" Prince Wants Love Suit Speeded Up

PRINCESS LIPPE-LIPSKI AND WARD

New York, Dec. 20.—Because her sister Mrs. Gertrude Schroeder has not yet answered her suit for $100,000 damages for alleged alienation of Prince Nicholas De Lippe-Lipski's affections the Princess through her attorney, Joseph A. Shay, asked Supreme Court Justice Burr to declare her sister in default and send the case to a sheriff's jury for assessment of damages.

Mrs. Schroeder's attorneys, Gluck and Pilatsky, opposed the motion and applied for a stay, arguing that the other side knew Mrs. Schroeder had gone to Germany and had agreed to give her an extension of time in which to file answers. One of the charges is that the Prince was caught in Mrs. Schroeder's bath tub.

Justice Burr reserved decision on the motion as well as on a motion by Mr. Shay for $250 a week alimony and $5,000 counsel fees for the princess pending the outcome of the prince's suit for annulment of marriage on the ground of fraud and her counter-claim for a divorce, based on his alleged relations with Mrs. Schroeder.

According to Mr. Pilatsky, Mrs. Schroeder went to Germany in November to get her son, who has been ill and to look after business affairs. He said the Prince had been out of town several weeks. Mrs. Schroeder, he said, did not plan to return to this country until Spring.

It was learned that the Princess, who is in Washington, had filed a petition in the Surrogate's Court at Freehold, N. J., November 14, to adopt Countess Rene De Montenay, three and one-half years old. The petition states the child is the daughter of Henri and Claude De Montenay of Petrograd, both of whom are dead and that she has been living with the Princess since October, 1922.

The Princess is the former Mrs. Wendell Phillips of Boston.

BRITAIN TO RECOGNIZE SOVIET

Russia to Acknowledge Debt, but Present a Counter Bill to Wipe It Out

London, Dec. 20.—While the United States rebuff to the Soviet Government is attracting great attention here, the Westminster Gazette announces that British recognition of Russia and the re-opening of full trade relations with that country are likely to take place soon after the Baldwin ministry quits office.

Important negotiations which have been in progress, says the newspaper, have made it clear that the Moscow government will admit liability for the pre-war debt to Great Britain totalling about £655,000,000, the interest on which has not been paid since 1915.

In return, the Westminster Gazette asserts, Russia will ask compensation for the Allied support accorded the White forces after the revolution.

The newspaper's diplomatic correspondent who contributes this information says that when the claim against Britain for her share in the white operations has been satisfied there will still remain a considerable sum for British bondholders; there is, however, little prospect of the resumption of interest payments.

Red Flag Over White House, "Soviet Plan"

Washington, Dec. 20.—Intercepted Soviet instructions from Russia to the "Workers' Party of America," outlining detailed plans for a proletarian revolution in America to "raise the red flag over the White House," were made public by the State Department in support of Secretary Hughes' refusal yesterday to enter into any negotiations with Soviet Russia.

The department's announcement said that the Department of Justice "has assured the State Department of the authenticity of these instructions."

Part of the program outlined provided for the organization among industrial workers in the United States of "fighting" units.

"The members of the fighting units, in addition to all other matters of instructions said, 'must once a week be given instructions in shooting and receive some instruction in pioneer work (sapper work)."

Instructions sent out by the Communist International include this statement:

"We hope that the party will step by step conquer (embrace) the proletarian forces of America and in the not distant future raise the Red flag over the White House."

Russian Minister Denies Red Propaganda in U. S.

Moscow, Dec. 20.—"We are continuing to fix our hopes on a change in public opinion in America," Foreign Minister Chicherin said in commenting on the statement of Secretary of State Hughes in the Washington that there seemed to be no reason at this time for negotiations with Russia.

"Mr. Hughes said in his statement that negotiations are impossible until Moscow ceases to be the centre of propaganda," said Chicherin, "New York is also the centre of propaganda. Many of the revolutionary parties have executives there.

"We have many times declared that no support was given by our government to the revolutionary parties there. At the time Maurzena was expelled, no evidence of such support was given.

Passenger on Fall River Liner Reports Loss of Diamonds En Route to Boston

Fall River, Dec. 20.—Upon his arrival from New York, B. Y. Jacobson, representing the Progress Manufacturing Company, of New York, requested the aid of the inspectors' department to recover diamonds valued at $25,000 and a wallet containing a large sum of money.

They were left in a stateroom of the steamship Priscilla of the Fall River line when the boat arrived here Monday morning. Several inspectors have been assigned to the case.

Jacobson told the police that a short time after the boat left New York, a young man invited him to play pinochle, and they were later joined by another man. The game lasted for some time, and when about to retire, Jacobson placed the diamonds and his money with his vest under his pillow. In the morning he boarded a train for Boston and on arrival there discovered he had left his vest in his stateroom.

Jacobson made a hurried trip from Boston to New York where he learned his wallet had been found minus the money. No trace of the vest or the diamonds were found in New York, and when Jacobson returned to this city he enlisted aid of the local police.

THEODORE ROBERTS HAS A RELAPSE

Pittsburgh, Dec. 20.—A relapse has been suffered by Theodore Roberts, widely known actor. Mr. Roberts has been ill in this city for a week. He is a veteran character actor, born in San Francisco more than a half century ago. He began his stage career before he had finished his schooling and has continued a public favorite from that time to this. Beginning with "barnstorming," he was for many years a Broadway favorite but finally yielded to Cecil B. de Mille, entered the field of the silver screen and there remained to become known as the "grand old man of the movies."

WON'T LET HUSBAND RUN FOR PRESIDENT

MRS. HENRY FORD

It is Mrs. Ford whom Calvin Coolidge can thank for the automobile manufacturer's refusal to enter the Presidential race. It was she who influenced his decision, accord ing to the pastor of Ford's church.

WIFE PUT FORD OUT OF RACE

from whom he will take counsel and advice. That one is Mrs. Ford.

"When he was working to develop his motor, it was Mrs. Ford who helped work out the plans. She didn't design or pattern or have anything to do with the mechanical parts of the car, but by her constant solicitude and care for the well-being of the hard working Edison Company employe in whom she had and expressed implicit faith, made the development of the motor possible. At least that is how Henry Ford has admiringly described Mrs. Ford.

"It is a well recognized fact, that is to Mrs. Ford, if to anyone, the automobile manufacturer would look for advice on things political. While neither Mrs. Ford nor her husband would openly declare the plan to run Henry for President was nipped in the bud by the former, it is accepted by friends in Detroit that Mrs. Ford has no ambitions toward the White House.

"I have not discussed the candidacy of the motor king with Mrs. Ford for some time, but she has been set against any such move for some time."

Republicans were jubilant, Democrats despondent, and third party men defiant as Ford declared for Coolidge, knocking into a cocked hat the efforts of his own friends to send him to the White House.

James W. Helms, of Adrian, prominent Democrat and State grange leader, who sponsored the move to place Ford's name on the Democratic presidential primary ballot in Michigan, was deeply disappointed. He was asked if the Ford petitions, which were filed at Lansing, would be withdrawn.

He answered:

"I know of no legal way they can be withdrawn."

Roy M. Harrop of Omaha, president of the National Ford Club, which was organized last week, asserted the third party men will hold their convention in some Western city next month and nominate Ford despite the automobile magnate's wishes.

"Henry Ford can never influence the farmers of the West to support Coolidge," Harrop told Universal Service.

The Nebraskan left for home today. Within five or six days, he said, he will announce at Omaha the time and place selected for the third party convention. It will be some time late in January, either in Chicago, Kansas City or Omaha that "we will hold our convention, and nominate Ford." Harrop resumed:

"Then he will have an opportunity to tell the American people outright whether or not he will accept their call to the Presidency. If he will not accept our nomination, we will name some one else. We will not support Coolidge."

Chief Backer Is Off Ford's Candidacy For Rest of Life

Adrian, Mich., Dec. 20.—James W. Helms, who filed petitions at Lansing, placing the name of Henry Ford in the Democratic column of the ballot in the Presidential primary, said he is "off the Ford candidacy for life," in commenting today upon Mr. Ford's statement that he would not oppose President Coolidge.

SEES EARLY PEACE IN IRELAND

Fears for Safety of Bishop Zepliak, Still "Held in Fetters by Russians"

Rome, Dec. 20 (A.P.).—Pope Pius XI at a secret consistory today created two Italian cardinals. They are Evariste Lucilidi, papal auditor, and Monsignor Attrelio Galli, director-general of the Vatican Museum.

In his allocution delivered at the consistory Pope Pius pointed out that peace conditions in Europe had not changed for the better since his last consistory.

He recalled the recent visit of King Alfonso and Queen Victoria of Spain and announced that the Irish question was approaching a settlement.

Today's function was held in the consistorial hall of the Vatican amid all the dignity and splendor that characterize one of the most solemn functions of the church. The pageantry began an hour before the sealed time when throngs of artisans and workmen lined the old Papal roads leading to the Vatican, to watch the cardinals residing in Rome drive to the apostolic palace.

It ended in the ancient hall when the Pontiff, having placed upon the fingers of the new cardinals the rings of their high office, retired in state to his private apartments, leaving the prelates to the congratulations of their colleagues.

When the members of the Sacred College arrived at the Vatican they found the Swiss guard, in full dress uniforms and equipped with breastplates and helmets, drawn up in the Court of St. Damascus to receive them.

In his allocution Pope Pius said:

"We announce to you the good news that the questions of Ireland, which is so dear to our heart, are happily approaching a settlement. We have comforting assurance of this in the recent pastoral letter of Cardinal Logue, while the later news confirms it."

Turning to Russia, His Holiness voiced extreme anxiety for the life of Archbishop Zepliak of Mohilev, "who still suffers in fetters in his prison."

But against these reasons for sorrow there were to be put reasons for rejoicing, such as the Eucharistic Congresses in Paris and Geneva, and the visit to Rome of the Spanish sovereigns, "who, during their stay, gave proof in this Eternal City, both in our presence and before the Roman people, gave the noblest testimony of their faith and their devotion to the Apostolic See."

He expressed great gratification at the abundance of help received from all sides to save from death so many unfortunate people in Central Europe and the Near East.

BLOWN 30 FEET TO DEATH IN MYSTIC

Andrew Moynahan, No. 9 Folsom court, Malden, was swept from the Boston Elevated structure across the Mystic River into the river thirty feet below and drowned before aid could reach him.

At the time of the accident, Moynahan's wife and four of his children were at home planning a Christmas surprise for him.

Andrew Moynahan

Moynahan was a track walker for the Boston Elevated Railway Company between the North Station and Everett. It is believed he had discovered a defect in the track and was a coping over to make repairs when a sudden gust overbalanced him.

His body was found face downward in the mud at the Wellington Bridge, to where the tide had carried it, by James McCormack, No. 528 Bennington street, Boston, a draw tender at the bridge. The body was removed to Wilson's morgue in Somerville.

Moynahan is survived by his widow and six children, ranging in age from nine months to nine years.

THE CHRISTMAS CLUB IS TEST OF THRIFT

You can't tell 'em—on Saturday afternoons—

If they're tripping up the stairs of a credit house, or hustling off to the bank—

Whether it's two dollars a week on a fur coat, or five dollars a week in the bank.

The girl with the plain clothes has her fingers locked tight in Romance's deep palm.

And the fur-coated rival, glittering in her finery like a five-dollar gold piece, is just making desperate attempts to catch Romance's friendly glance.

BANKER CAN TELL.

That's the story, and a banker tells it. He has charge of one of the biggest Christmas Clubs in the country, and handles the weekly deposits of some 40,000 young people.

If you want the real story of young Americans of native parentage, talk with Robert E. Fay, official of the Exchange Trust, and head of the Christmas Club department, which has just distributed a million and a half dollars to stenographers and filing clerks and young chaps who will spend it all on new clothes before New Year's.

FIRST TRY AT SAVING

"Of course, there's always the exception," Fay points out, "but young Americans really don't know how to save.

"The Christmas Club, to thousands of young people in Boston, represents their first introduction to any sort of saving.

"It is making a great many young people save money who would never save, otherwise.

"Young people seem to have no desire to save money. They will spend what is left from living expenses each week on clothes or theatres. The charge against young girls that they spend all their money on clothes, holds just as true for a large number of young men.

"There are many young fellows who would rather have an expensive overcoat and a cane, than money in the bank. And the number seems growing. The yearly total of savings deposits is growing all the time, but there are fewer savers, in proportion to the population.

"Young women who save money are generally engaged. Once they have an engagement with some young man, the vision of a home of their own looms up, and a little bank account looks better than costly clothes.

OFTEN IN DEBT.

"The young women you see with fine clothes, who have only an average salary, are frequently in debt for their clothes and are generally those who live at home and spend the most of their weekly pay check, in this manner. But few of the girls who wear expensive clothes are engaged.

"The young man, too, frequently begins his first bank account when he becomes engaged. He begins to get serious ideas then and theatres and fine clothes seem less desirable.

"It is the children of immigrants who have learned thrift. It is not fair, of course, to make comparisons between expenditures of the immigrants and the American because the latter have so much better standard of living."

SMALL DEPOSITORS WEAKEN.

An interesting disclosure made by Boston banks reveals the fact that adults who join the twenty-five or fifty cent class in the Christmas Club, rarely persevere to the end of the savings period.

"After a few weeks this class of savers begin to neglect their deposits, and their case is so general that we no longer take these accounts," says Fay.

"If you can't save 25 cents a week, you can't save a dollar. The person who cannot exercise enough self-control to carry a 50-cent deposit in a Christmas Club, will never save money, anyhow."

PRISON TRUSTEE TO BE 'CONVICT'

Philadelphia, Dec. 20.—W. Curtis Bok, recently appointed member of the board of trustees of the Eastern Penitentiary, plans to become a "convict" for two weeks and five in a cell at the institution to gain first-hand information of life behind prison walls.

Mr. Bok, who was appointed to the board last month, said the first day or so will be spent in a receiving cell, in which the prison physicians observe the new arrivals and examine them for physical defects or disease.

He will then be assigned to a cell. He will rise at 6 o'clock and at 7 o'clock with the hundred or more convicts he will be marched to the mess hall with his tin plate and cup for breakfast. His days will be spent about the prison yard and in the shops. He plans to spend part of the evening in conference with other trustees.

At 10 p. m. he will be locked in his cell and the lights turned out.

CATTLE PLAGUE BANS BRITISH HUNTING

London, Dec. 20.—The rapid spread of the foot and mouth disease among cattle has prompted the Ministry of Agriculture to issue a drastic order prohibiting all hunting with dogs throughout the areas affected by the plague, the assumption being that the disease may be spread by dogs. The order comes at the very height of the British hunting season.

WITNESS SAW BOY GUEST IN WIFE'S ROOM

Probate Court had the appearance of a Winter reunion of the Hough's Neck summer colony during divorce proceedings between Louis N. Stoffel, of Dorchester, and Helen G. Stoffel, of Winchester.

Testimony is being heard on a cross suit brought by Stoffel against his wife, charging infidelity, and namely youthful Philip McManus, of Dorchester, as co-respondent. Mrs. Stoffel had previously brought suit for divorce on grounds of cruel and abusive treatment.

Toast and coffee for two, Stoffel alleges, was served Mrs. Stoffel and Young McManus in the former's chamber at the Stoffel cottage in Hough's Neck. Miss Elizabeth Stoffel, sister of the libellant, testified to acting as waitress, and of observing McManus leave Mrs. Stoffel's room via a window to his own sleeping quarters on the front porch.

A goodly delegation of Hough's Neck cottagers arrived in court to testify concerning Mrs. Stoffel's good name and also concerning an informal party staged at an empty cottage at which four young women were the alleged guests of Stoffel.

Under cross-examination by Attorney Carroll, defense counsel, Stoffel admitted "hurling" his wife and dragging her upstairs at her home in Roxbury.

Mrs. Stoffel denies her husband's allegations.

Three other employes who were in the same room hurried to Stayone's aid and sought to extinguish the blazing clothes by throwing shovelful after shovelful of sand at the burning man. Frantic efforts were made to prevent the spread of the fire to other parts of the room where fireworks are stored.

One of the rescuers was severely burned about the hands.

'NICE BOY' IN REVOLT, POSES AS MARRIED

Butter wouldn't melt in Howard Horton's mouth, chums of the eighteen-year-old Hingham youth averred.

And Howard resented his reputation. He did not want to be a "nice boy." He dreamed of becoming an actor, of life on Broadway.

So Howard schemed to show Hingham that he was not only a man of the world, but also to make his dreams come true.

His scheme blossomed into a series of impassioned love letters which he wrote to himself. The letters were signed "Gertrude," who was purported to be his wife living in New York with their "baby."

DAD SPOILS IT.

Most patronizing was the manner of Howard when he permitted his friends to peruse the ardent epistles. He had reached the stage of believing he really was the beloved of a real Gertrude till his dad, Irving Horton, of No. 28 Elm street, stepped into the picture and unfeelingly spoiled it for Howard.

Dad had heard of the letters and when he threatened to expose Howard to his real sweetheart, a sixteen year-old daughter of a neighbor, Howard confessed.

Howard may never become an actor, but there's a future ahead of him as a fiction writer.

Here's evidence to support that prediction in one of his letters he wrote to himself:

KEEN IMAGINATION.

"Dearest Howard—Your letter received at last, so glad to hear from you. Baby is fine.

"Am getting along fine at work. You seem to act very strange, dear. What is the trouble? Please tell me where you work, dear? Do you like it?

"Howard dear, you can't realize how lonesome I am for you at morning and I wake up hugging my pillow dreaming it is you. Must we be separated forever, dear? I know you are doing what is best, though trifling. I mustn't complain. Sweetheart, you know I miss you don't it be grand when we can cuddle up together and love each other more like we used to.

"Darling, I would love to have you be for Thanksgiving. If you say honey bunch, you will break my heart. Your Wife shouldn't mean s much to you as I do. I shall se control if I don't see you.

"Sweetest love, GERTRUDE."

MOTHER OF YALE STAR SUED BY HIS WIFE

Taunton, Dec. 20.—Mrs. Salome J. Tierney of New Bedford, wife of E. William Tierney, prominent automobile dealer and former Yale football star, has brought suit for $20,000 against her mother-in-law, Mrs. Jennie B. Tierney, No. 565 Madison street, Fall River, for the alleged alienation of her husband's affections.

The young wife alleges her mother-in-law dominated the entire family and persuaded Tierney to remain absent from his own fireside so much that he finally remained away.

Tierney is alleged to have left his wife last March and to have gone back to Fall River to live with his parents. Subsequently, he was arrested on a charge of non-support. The case was repeatedly continued.

On the fifth continuance, counsel agreed upon a temporary support settlement, and the case was continued until February 29. None of the interested parties will discuss either the non-support or the alienation suits.

It required the work of a wrecking crew to disengage the automobile and the car which had become interlocked.

'DEAD' HUSBAND SAYS HE CAUGHT WIFE WITH MAN

Mrs. Jessie King

Mrs. Jessie King of Waltham, who brought suit for divorce when she discovered that her "dead" husband was very much alive, accused her husband at the hearing in Middlesex Divorce Court, of undue friendliness with Katherine O'Keefe of Boston.

King, who is contesting the suit, countered with charges that his wife had been too intimate with John McNeil of Somerville and that on one occasion he found the two together in a room in that city.

DESERTION ALLEGED.

Mrs. King seeks a divorce on the grounds of desertion and cruel and abusive treatment.

King explained in court that he had failed to support his wife because he had for four years worked only one day a week and had received only $10 a week for his services.

To support his statements that his wife was friendly with McNeil, King displayed a letter in court which he alleged was written to her by McNeil and in which the latter represented himself to be her son, Malcolm, to ward off suspicion.

CLAIMS LETTER AS SON'S

Mrs. King claimed the letter was in reality written to her by her son, Malcolm.

The letter, postmarked Seattle, Washington, read:

"Dear Jess: Just slide away quietly to see your boy, Malcolm, in Frisco and Seattle. What in h——l will people say. Do not give yourself away. Do not be handicapped for your fare, Jess. I wish you were here to enjoy the beautiful scenery."

Dissolution or resignation of the Cabinet will follow the special session of the Diet in the opinion of the press.

2 COPS 'TREED' BY WILD STEER IN BRIGHTON

Two patrolmen and a score of railroad employes were driven to cover by an infuriated Western steer that broke loose from the cattle pen on the Boston & Albany tracks at Brighton.

Charging down the tracks, the steer entered the Beacon Park railroad yards. Railroad men scurried to cover behind freight cars or whatever protection offered, while a crowd of amused spectators gathered on Cambridge street.

Patrolmen John L. Willard and Arthur P. Larvey each fired three shots at the steer, and then, when the animal charged, Willard took refuge beneath a gondola car while Larvey scrambled on top of a box car. From these vantage points, the patrolmen fired several more shots at the steer, which had "treed" Larvey.

Sergeant Frank N. Harrington of the Brighton station, in the meanwhile, borrowed a 45-70 rifle from the Metropolitan police. At his first shot, the steer charged. A second shot stopped the animal in its tracks.

KLUXER SHAKES AS HIS DEATH IS DEMANDED

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 20.—Sitting with tousled hair, trembling hands and twitching facial features, Philip E. Fox, K. K. K. editor and confessed slayer of Attorney W. S. Coburn here on November 6, last, listened in grim silence to two groups of lawyers as they argued before the jury which is to decide his fate.

One faction pleaded for his life while the other begged for his death.

At no time did the defendant, who is basing his hopes of escape from the gallows on a plea of insanity, register any indication of knowing what it was all about. He sat with head bowed and fumbled pieces of paper on the defense table as the battle waged.

WIFE AT TRIAL.

His young and pretty wife who has been at his side every minute since the trial began a week ago, appeared tired, worn and extremely nervous. As charges of immorality were hurled against her husband her eyes flashed anger, and at times she leaned over the table to give her lawyers a pointer in reply to the argument.

During the four days of testimony State attorneys presented witnesses who gave a deft motive for the slaying. They proved that Attorney Coburn, because of the factional strife within the Klan, was collecting damaging evidence against Fox's character which would have ruined his reputation, had it been made public.

CONDUCT EXPOSED

Witness after witness took the stand who told of the unlawful relations Fox had with women, of frequent visits to disreputable houses and of fights during drunken brawls.

The slayer was editor of "The Night Hawk," official publication of the Klan under the Hiram W. Evans regime which now controls affairs of the "Invisible Empire." Coburn was a close follower of Wm. Joseph Simmons, organizer and deposed leader of the hooded ranks.

Mellon Figures Cost of Bonus $5,085,833,687

Washington, Dec. 20.—Secretary Mellon today estimated the cost of the soldier bonus cash payment plan at $5,085,833,687, or at the rate of $250,000,000 a year.

In a letter to Representative A. Piatt Andrew (Republican, Massachusetts), the Secretary said further that the farm and home aid feature of the bill introduced the other day would require $2,048,662,902.

If 100 per cent, preferred vocational training aid it would amount to $2,318,022,541, of which $1,300,000,000 would be payable the first year and $1,000,000,000 the second year.

If 100 per cent. accepted certificates it would be $5,400,526,444, and the average for the first four years $2225,000,000 a year.

GREEKS DEMAND RETURN OF VENIZELOS

Athens, Dec. 20 (A. P.).—A group representing 4,000 officers of the Greek army and navy sent a telegram today to former Premier Venizelos in Paris urging him to come to Athens immediately.

Paris advices have indicated that Venizelos was awaiting final results of the Greek elections before deciding whether to return to Greece. It has been stated in quarters close to Venizelos that he would not accept an invitation to return unless he felt satisfied it represented a united call from the Greek people.

Athens, Dec. 20 (I.N.S.).—The Greek government today assured the foreign legations that the departure of King George II. was only provisional and that the National Assembly soon will meet to discuss the future status of the government.

DR. SUN ISSUES APPEAL TO U. S. FOR REPUBLIC

Hong Kong, Dec. 20. (A.P.)—In a message addressed to "my friends, the American people," Dr. Sun Yat Sen, South China leader, whose threat to seize the customs funds at Canton, has resulted in a concentration of warships of five foreign powers in Canton Harbor, declares it would be "a crime and an undying shame if the naval power of America were used forcibly in the collection of customs within the territory of my government, so that traitors and militarists might flourish at Peking."

Sun has caused the message to be published at Canton, where the condition is critical, with some of the foreign gunboats cleared for action, and a decisive step by the Canton government is anticipated momentarily.

Sun's message adds:

"America was our example when we started the revolution to abolish autocracy and corruption in high places and establish the republic of China. We might well have expected an American Lafayette to fight on our side in this good cause.

In the twelfth year of our struggle for liberty, however, there comes, not a Lafayette, but an American admiral with more ships than any nation in our waters, to join those who wish to crush us so that the republic of China will perish."

The latest reports received from Canton were that five vessels of the American Asiatic fleet were anchored in Canton harbor, with five British warships, two French and one Portuguese gunboats.

LADY MOORE LOSES IN DIVORCE FIGHT

London, Dec. 20.—An innocent man would not write a married woman a letter declaring she had ruined his life.

This was the observation of the judge in the London divorce court when he granted Sir Harold De Cosmo Moore a decree of divorce on grounds of the now famous "hate letter" in which William Harvey, chauffeur, had declared Lady Moore led him from paths of virtue.

In summing up the case, the judge said he did not believe the chauffeur's statement that he wrote the letter to placate his jealous sweetheart, and did not believe Harvey's declarations that he was "merely wandering about the house" when, according to servants, he entered Lady Moore's room.

FILM DIRECTOR REVEALED AS BIGAMIST

El Paso, Tex., Dec. 20.—Mrs. Violet Le Maie, who says she is the wife of Elsier Le Maie, film director, accused by a woman in Los Angeles, who also claims to be his wife, of having tried to sell her to a negro for $500,000, declared she knew nothing of any divorce proceedings brought against LeMaie.

The Los Angeles wife, Helen La Maie, has filed a divorce complaint against him. Le Maie is thus revealed as a bigamist.

Mrs. Violet Le Maie said that her husband left here two weeks ago for Los Angeles and is expected to return home for the Christmas holidays. The couple were married three years ago at Dallas, she said. They have a month-old son.

Meanwhile the Los Angeles wife names Mrs. Mary Ella Howe Holder, widow of an El Paso, Tex., banker, as co-respondent. She also asks a share of La Maie's asserted $400,000 estate.

The negro named in the complaint by Mrs. La Maie of Los Aneles is Lou H. Baker, wealthy gambler and central figure of the Juarez, Mexico, underworld.

Driven to desperation because of the asserted efforts of her husband to sell her to Baker, Mrs. La maie says she contemplated committing suicide, but was persuaded by friends not to do so.

Although Le Maie has a fortune of $400,000, Mrs. La Maie of Los Angeles adds she has been compelled to support herself and two minor children.

DEAN OF LAWRENCE PRINTERS IS DEAD

Lawrence, Dec. 20.—John D. Conway, dean of printers in this city and the oldest member of the Lawrence Typographical Union is dead at his home No. 264 Chestnut street. He was born in Holyoke 72 years ago, but resided in Lawrence since childhood. For years he had been associated with local newspapers, but for some time had conducted a shop of his own. He leaves two sons and three daughters.

Mrs. Hay Goes Abroad to Hunt, Says Betty Alden

By BETTY ALDEN.

DASHING Mrs. Clarence L. Hay is off again—this time to England.

The sport-loving daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis R. Appleton is one of the most enthusiastic huntswomen of the Myopia following. It was about a month ago that she and Mrs. Bayard Tuckerman, Jr. (Phyllis Sears), went down to Virginia for a few weeks of riding with the hounds.

Now her interest in the spur and saddle sport has taken Mrs. Hay—she was formerly Miss Appleton—across the big pond to merrie England, where, I believe, she's enjoying the hunting of Bucks County.

Last Winter this attractive sport-woman was in a party which took a house for the season in the famous hunting country north of London. With her were the Bayard Tuckermans, Jr., Herbert M. Sears and Major James W. Appleton, M. F. H., of the Myopia Hunt Club. Mr. Hay, who was in Mexico when the party left, joined them later in the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Hay made a long Fall sojourn at "Beaver Pond," the Beverly estate of Amos A. Lawrence. The former Miss Appleton, a distinct brunette with flashing dark eyes, is known as one of the smartest women of her set.

MRS. MORGAN FIRTH of Chestnut Hill has been stopping for a few days in New York at the Hotel Lorraine.

VIVACIOUS Gwendolyn Hart of Beacon street was most effective as the Pollyanna-like heroine in the Theatre Guild's presentation the other night.

Gwendolyn Hart

The play was "Summer Is A-Comin' In," by Louis N. Parker, author of "Disraeli" and "Pommander Walk." Not a few members of the fash enable world made their way to the Fine Arts Theatre for the occasion.

Others in the cast included Guy Warren Walker, Jr., of Brimmer street, a Harvard '20 man, as the much-entangled hero whom the Pollyanna-like heroine "vamped" so successfully. "Jack Hollybush" was played by Phillip Orcutt, who is following in the footsteps of his illustrious father, William Dana Orcutt. Mrs. Orcutt, by the way, is one of the Guild's sponsors.

Early in February this young but swiftly-growing organization is to produce another play, this time an American play.

MR. AND MRS. HOUSTON A. THOMAS whose place at Hamilton is known as "The Locusts" are soon to leave the North Shore for Switzerland.

Each Winter finds the Thomases in the little country so famed for its scenic glories and Winter sports.

EX-POLICEMAN HELD; CHARGE, NON-SUPPORT

Robert F. Briggs, ex-police officer of the East Dedham street station, was arrested on a warrant for non-support of his wife and children, and was lodged in a cell of the station where he had spent three years as a patrolman. The warrant was sworn out in the Dorchester Court by Mrs. Robert F. Briggs, of No. Lynevilla terrace, Dorchester, wife of Briggs and the mother of his two children.

Briggs was discharged two weeks ago for conduct unbecoming an officer.

One and ⅓ pounds of diamond

One November evening in 1908 the superintendent of the Premier Company in the Transvaal was inspecting the mine after the workmen had left. Suddenly his eye caught a gleam in the side of the mine. His curiosity aroused, he investigated.

Thus by chance was discovered the largest diamond in the world. In its rough state the Cullinan, so called in honor of the chairman of the Premier Company, weighed over 3,000 carats, or 1⅓ pounds. It was purchased by the Transvaal Government for about $1,000,000.

After months of careful study and the casting of special tools, the Cullinan diamond was cut into ten beautiful jewels, the largest of which weighed 516½ carats.

The Cullinan was presented to King Edward VII by the Transvaal Government in appreciation of the grant of self-government by England to the country. It is among the Crown Jewels of England today.

200 REBELS DIE IN MEXICAN BATTLE

Baker, Oregon, Dec. 20.—Mrs. Emily Christensen Earhart, formerly of Baker, has been killed at Tula, Mexico, by bandits, according to word received here by J. F. Penrod, from R. Earhart, the woman's husband, at Tampico. Earhart said that he and his two small children were safe.

Mexico City, Dec. 20 (A.P.).—Rebels attacking Villa Hermosa, capital of the state of Tabasco, have been defeated after a thirty-hour battle, with the loss of 200 killed and more than that number wounded, according to an official bulletin issued by the War Department.

The defending federals under General Vincente Gonzalez fought gallantly and suffered thirty casualties, according to his report. The rebels fled, leaving dead and wounded and large quantities of war material.

Dispatches from Apizaco, eighty-six miles from here, state that fighting has been resumed on the outskirts to Puebla and Esperanza, while Tehuacan has been evacuated by the forces under General Fortunato Maycotte and occupied by a federal column. Puebla is sixty-three miles southeast of Mexico City.

Vera Cruz, Dec. 20 (I.N.S.).—Revolutionary forces under General Garza, General Gonzalez and General Maycotte have again defeated the federals in the region of San Marcos, according to advices received by Huertista headquarters.

Two thousand Yaqui indians and General Lopez Ortiz of General Martines's federal staff surrendered to the revolutionaries.

The federals have abandoned San Marcos and returned to Munoz, on the Mexicano Railroad. General Sanchez's revolutionary forces now control both the Interoceanic and Mexicano railroads to their verging point at Apizaco, seventy-eight miles from Mexico City.

60,000 LIVE EELS REACH CITY, SWIMMING IN PRIVATE CAR

For the first time in history, live, wriggly eels are traveling into Boston in their own private, steam-heated cars and with special swimming pools.

To begin with, a chain of four Boston fish stores took a barge of 200,000 pounds of eels from Quebec to New York. Part were sold there.

The rest were sent out in "live" cars. One of these came to Boston for the first time.

In it were 12,000 eels looking for a happy Christmas—in pleasing others. It was brought here by the Globe Fish Company. These "live" cars have fourteen zinc tanks in which water is kept in agitation by steam when the train is in motion and by an electric dynamo when the car is on a siding. Two eel chambers made travel with the car to care for the eels.

PINKERTON 'FOUND WOMAN' AND SOLVED $1,000,000 FORGERY

CLEW FROM OLD BLOTTER TRAPPED BIDWELLS

By AUSTIN O'MALLEY.

William A. Pinkerton did not originate the phrase, "Find the Woman," but he was, nevertheless, a firm believer in following that advice.

He often said no criminal who had a wife or a sweetheart could long keep out of the toils of justice. In tracking down the famous Bidwell brothers, who looted the Bank of England of more than $1,000,000, he worked entirely upon this theory and was successful.

The story of the Bidwell brothers and the Bank of England forgery is told below:

The impossible had happened. The Bank of England, synonym for integrity, for perfect security, had been looted of more than $1,000,000.

Scotland Yard was in despair. Her noted detectives of the criminal investigation department had sought in vain for the men who had perpetrated this crime.

All they had been able to discover was the means by which the bank had been looted. They found an exceptionally clever band of criminals who had learned by accident that officials of the bank had grown careless regarding verification of signatures on notes of acceptance and had taken advantage of the fact.

The method had been simplicity itself. A clever forger had merely signed passable imitations of the signatures of leading business men of the British Isles to notes of acceptance due six months or even a year in the future. No one in the bank ever thought to communicate with the purported signers to see whether they really were genuine.

Only a mistake caused by the carelessness and overconfidence of the criminals had resulted in the forgery being uncovered. On one of the notes the date of acceptance had been omitted and a clerk of the bank, making routine inquiries of the supposed signer, learned the signature was a forgery.

This constituted the sum of the knowledge of Scotland Yard—knowledge of how the crime had been perpetrated. They could get no inkling of who the criminals were.

Pinkerton Goes to Help

In despair Scotland Yard wired to American authorities, and two weeks later young Billy Pinkerton, then just at the start of his famous career as a detective, landed in Liverpool.

Pinkerton brought with him only one piece of knowledge that was not already in the hands of the English police. This was that George McDonald, Harvard graduate, forger, confidence man, ex-convict and swindler de luxe, had, the year before, left New York, presumably for Paris.

That life, for McDonald, was just one woman after another, that women were his only weakness, Pinkerton also knew.

For weeks he directed operatives of Scotland Yard on a minute search of London and its environs. Every American in the city was investigated. Many were found whose lives would not bear too close inquiry, but none could be discovered who could, by any stretch of the imagination, be thought to be involved in the bank looting.

After nearly two months of this sort of futile searching Pinkerton's men stumbled on what seemed like a possible clew. A woman who kept a boarding house in St. James place, Picadilly, recalled that four Americans had rented rooms from her some time ago. They had left suddenly, she remembered, just after paying a month's rent in advance.

The time? Yes, she remembered. It was about three months ago. She was certain of this because she had been unable to rent her rooms since then.

Three months ago corresponded with about the date the fraud on the Bank of England had been discovered.

The landlady could give only descriptions which might apply equally well to half the people of London. Only the fact that he knew McDonald enabled Pinkerton to determine one of her descriptions applied to the former Harvard man.

In searching the rooms occupied by the men Pinkerton found, in a small, old-fashioned desk, a piece of ink-stained, well-worn blotting paper.

Clue from Old Blotter

He studied the hodgepodge of letters, superimposed upon each other on this old blotter and traced the most legible of them. He discovered that they were the blottings of the forged signatures by which the Bank of England had been defrauded.

But clearer than the rest and evidently the last writing on which the blotter had been used was the name and address of a woman living in St. John's Wood, Kensington, London.

At this address he learned the woman had left three months before, but had left a forwarding address in Havre, France. From Havre to Paris and then back to London Pinkerton traced the woman. He found her in a London hotel.

Playing upon jealousy, Pinkerton told her her he had recently met McDonald with another woman and that he, McDonald, had spoken slightingly of her.

Then she told Pinkerton she knew the entire gang who had robbed the Bank of England. She told of their operations, told their identity. McDonald, she said, was merely a tool.

The real chief of the band was George Bidwell, an American crook, who, after perpetrating many swindles in the United States, had fled with his brother, Austin Bidwell, and McDonald to England. Here they were joined by George Engles, a master forger, who, with McDonald, did the actual work of issuing the spurious signatures.

Reveals Whole Scheme

It was George Bidwell, she asserted, who had learned of the carelessness of the Bank of England in examining signatures and devised the swindle.

All except Engle, she said, were "good fellows." George and Austin Bidwell both had their "girls" and showered money upon them. Only Engle remained aloof from women and hoarded his part of the proceeds. It was to Engle she traced her break with McDonald and whom she blamed for all her later difficulties.

She told the detective Austin and his sweetheart had gone to the United States.

Pinkerton found them and kept a strict watch over Bidwell's mail.

After several weeks a letter in cipher from Ireland was found. The cipher was translated and the letter proved to be from George Bidwell, gloating over his escape from the English police.

Locating George Bidwell, Pinkerton finally intercepted a letter addressed to McDonald in the United States. Then the three traps were sprung simultaneously. The three men were all arrested the same day and later made statements which resulted in their conviction and sentence to life imprisonment.

Pinkerton interceded with British authorities and obtained the release of the three men after they had served nearly twenty years. All were broken in health and died within a few years after their release, the Bidwell brothers in dire poverty.

George Engle, the "woman hater" of the quartet, never was taken, and Pinkerton often said this fact proved his contention that if a man hoped to be successful in crime his first rule must be to keep away from women.

WIFE'S GIFT CIGAR GOOD, BREAKS RULE

New York, Dec. 20.—Twenty-four men who lighted cigars or cigarettes in subway stations were fined $5 each by Magistrate Oberwager in Centre street court. One Isidor Moscoff was let off because he said he forgot the No Smoking rules in his eagerness to test the quality of the box of cigars given to him by his wife on his 50th birthday.

"Was it a good cigar?" asked the magistrate.

"One of the best ever," said Mr. Moscoff, and then explained apologetically, "that was what made me so absent-minded—the wonder of it."

GIRL IS DYING AFTER DANCE HALL ATTACK

Dover, N. H., Dec. 20.—Helen O'Leary of Farmington, N. H., is dying at Rochester Hospital of a brutal beating alleged to have been given her in a dance hall by her escort, William Matthews, a chef employed at the American House here.

Matthews, arraigned in court on a charge of murderous assault, was held to await the outcome of the girl's injuries.

Miss O'Leary, the police say, accompanied Matthews and another woman to the dance hall. During intermission, Matthews and the two women began to quarrel. Although the police failed to learn the nature of the quarrel, they believe it resulted from jealousy between the two women.

Suddenly, before the horrified gaze of other dancers, Matthews is alleged to have thrown Miss O'Leary to the floor and to ha[illegible]sten and kicked her until she was unconscious.

Police on duty at the dance arrested Matthews and removed the girl to the hospital. There it was found she had three fractured ribs and numerous bruises about the body.

BIG SUNDAY SHOW FOR BASKET FUND AT WILBUR THEATRE

Thousands of needy children will be fed on Christmas Day as a result of two big entertainments in Boston and Cambridge next Saturday and Sunday. One of these shows will be for children while the other will be for grown-ups.

The show for kiddies will be held in Gordon's Central Square Theatre, Cambridge, on Saturday morning, while that for grown-ups will be conducted in the Wilbur Theatre on Sunday evening.

The children's show will be directed by Lina Pearce, "Baby" Josephine Leonard and her twelve-year-old brother Jimmie of South Boston, while the Sunday show at the Wilbur will be conducted by Bert Spear, one of the best known men in the New England entertainment field.

TICKETS ON SALE.

Tickets for both performances are now on sale. Seats for the children's show are selling at 10 cents each and are not reserved. Seats for the Wilbur show on Sunday evening range from $1.00 in the orchestra to 50 cents in the second balcony. They are reserved and may be obtained at the box office of that theatre. Free use of both theatres has been generously given by the managements.

In addition to offering free use of the Wilbur Theatre for Sunday evening a performance Messers. Shubert have offered the services of the principals of "The Lady in Ermine," the charming operetta now playing there. They will sing some of the smashing song hits of this tuneful production.

MANY FINE ACTS.

The list of entertainers of the Sunday performance will be almost a directory of the best acts in the field. Among some of the acts that will positively appear are Kaat and Flo, America's Blind Violinist; The Montegazza Trio, featuring Pietro and his accordion; Kasan Wong, Chinese magician and New England favorite; Bessie Barriscale, Klass Brothers, the comedy juggling Mirror Boys, Mr. Brown, pianist; Jack Hanlon, Jr., in his unusual interpretations of Eddie Foyer and her famous Miss Marjorie Gordon in their song revue; Tom Lonman, the piano boy, and Lucas & Inslee, the novelty acrobats.

Reservations are coming up rapidly and Mr. Spears promises a lot of surprises.

The possibility of Gordon's Central Square Theatre is one of the many reasons why it draws patrons from all sections. Persons wishing to avoid large crowds may reach the theatre in Cambridge by many routes.

KIDDIES EAGER.

The special show for kiddies on Saturday morning will attract hundreds of children from all parts of Greater Boston. Large crowds have arranged to go there from South Boston, Dorchester, Roxbury, East Boston, Arlington and other suburbs.

The program of the kiddies' show will include special pictures in which tickets pass for prominent persons of those in "The Man Who Wouldn't Save," produced by Atlas Film Co. The motion picture is based upon one of Edgar Guest's popular "Just Folks" poems. Jimmie Leonard, one of the youngsters conducting Saturday's show, plays one of the roles. Free use of the picture has been given by Leon Delmum.

The remainder of the program will include a two-reel comic, two reels of wonderful pictures of animals taken by Colonel Harry Eustace in the African jungle, with real lions, tigers etc., in their natural surroundings. The show will also include acts by some of the best known child comedians, child singers and child dancers in Greater Boston.

POLITICS 'TOO DIRTY' FOR MISS ROBERTSON

Washington, Dec. 20.—Smiling over a large red rose from the desk of President Coolidge "Aunt Alice" Robertson, former member of Congress from Oklahoma, bade farewell to politics.

Implacable foe of feminism, she said that woman has no place in the great national game as it is played today.

"She may help it from the outside, but it is not the sort of thing for a woman to get mixed up in personally. I am through with it. Politics is not yet clean enough for a good clean woman."

"Aunt" Alice called at the White House to say good-bye to President Coolidge. She has been here several weeks winding up business affairs in connection with her term in the last Congress.

KORETZ, BEFORE FLIGHT, MADE PAYMENTS

Chicago, Dec. 20.—Leo Koretz, fugitive head of the fictitious Cayuga River Trust Company of Panama, in which he induced his relatives and wealthy friends to invest more than $5,000,000, had an "attack of nervousness" just before he disappeared. His relatives so testified before a referee in bankruptcy.

Koretz' relatives and those of his wife told of their faith in the oil promoter's schemes and of their investment in them. Just before Koretz left they testified, he turned over $125,000 at one time and other amounts at other times as "dividends" with instruction to distribute it among his relatives.

After the relatives of Koretz had been questioned, Joseph Fleming, attorney representing the receiver for the Panama company, declared a Grand Jury investigation to determine the facts concerning the money left to relatives probably would be asked. Some of the relatives have turned over the money and jewels valued at $100,000, a part of the "conscience fund," Koretz distributed.

Meanwhile Government operatives declared they believed they had uncovered the fugitive's trail. They intimated he was in hiding within a day's ride of Chicago and declared they expected his apprehension in some eastern city within a few days.

BIG DECREASE SINCE 1914 OF PERSONS JAILED IN N. Y.

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 20.—Despite an increase in the number of persons committed last year to county jails and New York City Department of Correction institutions charged with intoxication, there was a decrease in the number committed to penitentiaries and a great decrease in the total number committed to all institutions, as compared with pre-war years, according to the annual report of institution officials to the State Prison Commission, made public today.

Compared with the year ending September 30, 1914, the report indicated the commitments to county jails in the fiscal year ended June 30, 1923 decreased about 5 per cent., the commitments to New York City institutions decreased about 79 per cent. and to penitentiaries about 75 per cent.

RICH BROKER GIVES AWAY BUSINESS

Wall Street Man Turns It Over to Junior Partners After Making a Fortune

New York, Dec. 20 (A.P.).—Having accumulated a fortune of more than $2,000,000 in Wall Street, John Porg, one of the leading members of the New York Curb market, today announced his retirement from the brokerage field and the gift of his business to three junior members of the firm.

"I have made my pile," Borg said "so I am getting out and letting the younger fellows make theirs. I am giving them the business I have built up and I myself have no further use for it myself as I have all the money I need.

"I'm getting the brokerage business in which I have made most of my money so that I can have more time for play.

"I am particularly anxious to devote more time to my hobby—newspaper. While I am not a newspaperman, I've got my own ideas about how a newspaper should be run. I think it ought primarily to serve the community in which it is located. My newspaper in Bergen N. J. s making some money, but with me profit is that enterprise is a secondary consideration."

Borg started in Wall Street as a kid a week office boy shortly after he was graduated from the Curtis Hill (N. J.) High School in 1897. A few years later he was in business for himself. He is now forty-two years old.

About three years ago he endowed a $25,000 scholarship fund for the benefit of the graduates of the Union Hill High School.

"I missed a college education because I had to go to work when I got out of high school," Mr. Borg said, "but I realize that a college education is a fine thing."

WOMAN PELTED WITH EGGS WINS IN HIGH COURT

Lansing, Mich Dec 20 There must be no discrimination between "pink tea" attendants and scrub women, or between society women and Magdalenes, in the application of the law, Justice Grant Fellows of the Michigan Supreme Court held in an opinion made public today.

The opinion was rendered in a suit for damages brought by Mrs Nona D. Bennett of Allegan County Bennett charged that several men and women, some of them masked visited her home in June, 1921 pulled her through a narrow window and threw her against a wall and pelted eggs at her

Affirming the decision of a lower court in favor of Mrs Bennett, Justice Fellows declared the defendants "are able and adroit counsel sought to besmirch Mrs Bennett's character."

"The community took the law into its own hands to administer its vengeance in the ethics of the Stone Age," he said. "It is our proud boast that all are equal before the law. If we deviate from this we must adopt one measure of damages for the attendant of pink tea and another for the scrubwoman, one for the society woman and another for the Magdalene."

FORCED TO FIGURE CLOSELY

"Margaret Hughes," of Once Prominent Family, Now Out of Work Three Weeks

The Boston American today prints the story of Margaret Hughes and her fight to live on ten dollars a week. It is another story in a remarkable series of "Ten Dollar Bills" and "Ten Dollar Belles."

Margaret Hughes has been out of a job for three weeks.

When she does work she only earns ten, or at most, twelve dollars a week and it takes every cent of that to winter a bare existence.

Margaret Hughes comes from a family once prominent in Greater Boston. Ten years ago they met reverses and since then Margaret has had to work to support herself.

"A room costs me $4 a week and the landlady allows me to do my washing and ironing," she said. "She once knew my folks, so she is very good to me.

"It's no joke either, living on ten dollars. I don't really live. I dare not spend more than 15 cents for breakfast and it's usually only ten—I get coffee and toast, or cereal.

"There's a cheap restaurant near where I work and I can get a lunch there for twenty-five cents. It's cheap meat and thin soup, but it fills me up. Supper costs twenty five cents.

"Every day my carfare is twenty cents and I put aside twenty-five cents every week for insurance. I want a decent burial.

MUST FIGURE CLOSELY.

When money for room, food and carfare is taken out of $10 there's little left for clothes, and Margaret has decided that a good coat lasts longest.

"I bought a coat for a dollar down and a dollar a week, and it's taken me six months to pay for it. Now I own it though and it will last me three years and look decent besides.

"It's terrible to have to figure so closely. I buy a pair of stockings for ten cents and an underskirt for ten cents and I keep awashing them out until they're so worn I can't wear them any longer. Then I buy new ones. I can make them last six months.

"If I need to buy something I put aside twenty-five cents each week until I have enough saved to pay for what I want. There isn't a store in Boston where you can buy things cheap that I don't know of."

An ice cream soda or a piece of candy are prohibited because there is no money to spend on them.

SAME GRIND FOR YEARS.

"I don't spend one penny that I don't have to spend. I never go to the movies unless I'm invited. I wouldn't spend ten cents on a car ride. It isn't because I don't want to, but because the ten cents may buy a piece of bread for me to keep from going hungry. All last Summer I spent forty cents on carfares to go and see a friend and truly, I begrudged that forty cents."

Margaret Hughes has lived the same grind for ten years.

"I get up in the morning. I work all day. I eat what I can get to eat, and I go home to bed.

"If I had any amusement I'd have to sacrifice a meal to get it and I can't work without my health and I haven't been able to save anything for an emergency. I'm lucky enough to have a room through a time when there isn't any work to be had."

Margaret's landlady allows her to use the stove in the kitchen to prepare food on.

"Once a week—on pay day—I just feel that I've got to blow myself or I won't be able to endure it any longer. I go out and buy a piece of steak for 20 cents, take it home, cook it and eat it and it's the only decent food I have all week.

SAVES FOR FUNERAL.

"Fifteen dollars is the least a person can live on. It may be a terrible thing to say, but sometimes I don't blame the girls who don't go on with the sacrifice and the bare emptiness of the life they have to live if they keep straight.

"There's nothing, absolutely nothing but hardship and privations and struggle. The only prospect I have is a decent funeral and I have to scrimp to assure myself of that."

Of course Margaret Hughes is not her real name. The American will give name and address to anyone who is interested. Tomorrow the story of another girl fighting to live on a Ten Dollar Bill will appear.

GOULD HEIRS BY FIRST WIFE GET FUND

MARJORIE GOULD DREXEL

Among the seven children of Edith Kingdon and George J. Gould who will receive $562,971 each as their share in Jay Gould's trust fund is Marjorie Gould Drexel who before her marriage was regarded as the belle of the family. Even today her matronly beauty attracts attention wherever she goes.

New York, Dec. 20.—Supreme Court Justice Vernon M. Davis decided that each of the children of the late George J. Gould and Edith Kingdon Gould, his first wife, should receive immediatgly $562,871.35 from the trust fund established by Jay Gould, their grandfather.

At the same time, Justice Davis stated he was "assuming without deciding" that each of the three children of George J. Gould's second wife, Guinevere Sinclair Gould, were also entitled to the same amount from the trust fund, $5,628,713.50.

The children of the first wife who will receive their shares at once are Kingdon Gould, Marjorie Gould Drexel, Jay Gould, Vivian Decies, George J. Gould, Jr., Edith Gould Wainwright and Gloria Gould. The children of the second wife are Guinevere, Jane and George.

Evidence showed the estate had dwindled from $5,600,000 last May to $50,485,295 today.

The $55,600,000 slump in a period of seven months is in the actual market value of securities. In making the award Justice Davis made allowance for the estimated State and Federal taxes, attorneys' fees and other expenses, and also for the possibility that the claim in behalf of the three children by Mr. Gould's second wife that they are also entitled to a share in the estate, may be eventually upheld.

TYSON SEES CHURCH LED BY MODERNS

Episcopal Controversy Is Expected to Extend to South, "Fundamental Hotbed"

New York, Dec. 20.—Today's developments in the Fundamentalist-Modernist controversy in the Protestant Episcopal Church,

Predictions by the Rev. Stuart L. Tyson, vice-president of the Modern Churchmen's Union, that Modernists will control the churches within twenty-five years.

Opinion that the Modernist-Fundamentalist war will soon invade the South, which has been regarded as a hotbed of Fundamentalism.

Growing belief that a crisis has been averted temporarily, and that the whole dispute will not be fully threshed out until the general convention in New Orleans in 1925.

PRAYER BOOK CHANGE.

Announcement that the prayer book commission of the Diocese of Massachusetts, over which Bishop Lawrence presides, will memorialize the general convention to have the creeds taken out of the morning and evening prayers, and have them relegated to the back of the prayer book for optional use.

The belief is that Bishop Manning will seek order Dr. Parks tried for heresy

MODERN CONTROL SEEN.

Prediction that modernism will control church thought within the next twenty-five years and that the modernist-fundamentalist doctrinal war now raging in New York Episcopal, Presbyterian and Baptist churches will soon invade the South, hot-bed of fundamentalist, thought, was made today.

The prediction came from the Rev. Dr. Stuart L. Tyson, vice-president of the Modern Churchmen's Union, while clergymen and laymen awaited an expected pronouncements from Bishop William T. Manning, Episcopal bishop of New York, answering the challenge of the Rev. Dr. Leighton Parks that he be tried for heresy for espousing modernistic doctrines.

The impression was given that the so-called revolt of the modernists will not come until the general conference of clergymen in New Orleans in 1925, when it may be expected to have reached such proportions as to force a stand on the questions that have been raised regarding the tenets of faith

DR. PARKS EXPLAINS.

The Rev Dr. Leighton Parks, rector of St. Bartholomew's Protestant Episcopal Church, said that he had not defied the virgin birth and had not defied Bishop Manning of the diocese of New York, in his remarks from the pulpit last Sunday Dr. Parks was asked if his words were to be interpreted as a statement that his sermon had been misquoted

"Well, some of the newspaper headlines were greatly to be regretted," he replied. "One of the papers said that I flouted the virgin birth, which would be a shocking thing to do Another paper said that I had defied the bishop, which would be a disloyal thing to do. I don't know who was responsible, but this was very unfortunate.

Asked whether his sermon was part of a concerted campaign by modernist churchmen to offset the action of the bishop of Dallas, Texas, in adopting a pastoral letter calling for adherence to the doctrine of the virgin birth and physical resurrection, or to defeat the aims of the fundamentalists to try the Rev. Lee W Heaton of Fort Worth, Texas, for heresy, Dr Parks said

"I am glad that question was asked because I want to say that I do not belong to the Modern Churchmen's Union or to any other association of the clergy, and that I consulted with no one in regard to what I should say in preaching this sermon. It represents nothing but what I myself have been teaching for the last thirty years."

LEAKING GAS BRINGS DEATH TO AGED WORCESTER COUPLE

Worcester, Dec. 20.—Escaping gas from a broken gas rubber tube caused the accidental death of John Marshall, seventy-four years old, and his wife, Mary, seventy-two, both of No. 3 Elm Way, at their home. The bodies were found on the kitchen floor.

Mr. Marshall and wife had evidently sat down to a late dinner, judging from the appearance of the room when the bodies were found. Mrs. Watkins, who lived on the first floor, heard a sound about 3:30 which caused her to believe someone fell on the floor. She did not investigate until 5:30 o'clock, when she smelled gas coming from the Marshall tenement on the second floor. She notified the police and the bodies were then discovered

They leave two children, Fred and Herbert Marshall, of Islip, N Y., where the parents formerly lived.

ANCIENT INDIAN CANOE BOTTOMS ARE DUG UP

Butler, N. J., Dec. 20 (Universal)—Cedar bottoms, from sunken canoes attributed to the ancient Ramapo Indians, have been unearthed by dredgers from the bottom of Witteck Lake, near here.

Foster H. Saville of the Museum of the American Indians has accepted their authenticity pending further research. He said the parts examined were typical of the completed Ramapo dugouts. He was unable to determine as yet whether the relics were of a colonial period or dated back 700 to 1,000 years, as might easily be.

Only one of the three canoe bottoms was intact, the other two being incomplete in all three instances but superficial bad damage appeared save for suggestion of attachments. Professor Saville commented upon the excellent preservation of the cedar used by the boat builders and said he believed that the fragments had been virtually embalmed in the turbaceous peat ever since submersion.

The Ramapos, a branch of the Hackensacks, Indians now in control were of the Councils of the Delawares, flourished in the earlier cycles of the Hudson River and Raritan boatmen, it was believed, and the quiet waters of Witteck Lake might have been one of many waters they frequented in the pursuit of their pastimes. Their crude raft furnished them with facilities for fishing, hunting and transportation.

PLAN TO MERGE ALL ELECTRIC PLANTS IN U. S.

Philadelphia, Dec. 20.—Electricity in practical measure, will soon replace coal in the heating of the average home, in the opinion of William Spencer Murray, chairman of the Public Service Survey of the United States Government, who addressed the members of the Chamber of Commerce of Philadelphia.

With the co-operation of the great electric utilities throughout the country he declared, the government would be able to institute great savings of coal and other material, as well as labor, where heat, light and power were concerned.

The general plan is to unify the country's electric plants, into one system from which power could be trained to every consumer.

In 1930, he said, provided the plan is adopted, the country ought to be saving 200,000,000 tons of coal annually; $200,000,000 in the cost of operating public utilities; $150,000,000 to industry, and $4,000,000,000 through the electrification of railways. This, he said, would be an annual saving of $500,000,000 on an investment which would not be greater than $3,000,000,000.

RADIO TO FOIL FAKE STOCK SWINDLERS

New York, Dec. 20.—A proposal to use the radio as a weapon to combat stock swindlers was considered today by the Better Business Bureau of New York. Striking results have been obtained by the Union Trust Company of Cleveland by this method.

The Trust Company reports that it has built up a regular clientele who "tune in" on Station WJAX, and hundreds of letters are received on the day following each "talk" asking for more complete information regarding propositions recently placed before them by fly-by-night salesmen.

A number of swindling plans have in this way been exposed to the Ohio authorities which otherwise would not have been uncovered, according to the report of the Cleveland Better Business Commission.

BANDIT ROBS GIRL ON WEST ROXBURY PARKWAY

Confronted by a bandit with a revolver, as she was walking along West Roxbury Parkway near Church street, Miss Elisobeth Fahey of No. 46 Parkvale road, West Roxbury, was robbed of a package containing a pair of gloves. According to her story, the man stepped out of the shadows and pointing a revolver at her head, demanded money. Frightened, the girl dropped the package which she was holding under her arm, and it was seized by the robber, who fled up Centre street before the victim could make an outcry.

PRISCILLA PRICE LOOKS FOR A HARD NUT TO CRACK

We found a little squirrel which has lots of brass, in fact he IS brass, from wide open jaws to the bough he grows on. Ready to crack the hardest nuts. That's just like a squirrel, isn't it? $4.90 and looks strong enough to last forever.

On the floor at his feet sits a haughty, long-necked giraffe. He can't have a sore throat, for he's taken the precaution to be made of wood, and little tots love to pull him along the floor. You can get him for $2.90.

Wild roses, tall hollyhocks, all the lovely garden flowers, bloom profusely on painted baskets of all sizes and shapes. You can watch the deft fingers of the lady at her work, and she will gladly help you select the painted basket that best suits your taste. You pay from $1.50 to $10.00 depending on the size of the basket.

Looking for things for the ladies, we come across a most unusual device for needles; it is black with silver filigree, the little black vials numbered from one to ten, so you'll find at a glance the size of needle you want for that bit of mending. It stands on your sewing table, or folds up for your bag, $3.50

For the traveler, or the guest, are little round sewing cases of nickel, containing a thimble, wee scissors and thread holder, all for $2.20.

Have we broadcast [illegible] letters [illegible] other area in the fight against [illegible] broadcast radio interference? Read the following letter which [illegible] sent to Senator Magnus Johnson by the Boston American:

"Hon. Magnus Johnson,

a senator Johnson begins his message. He is asking very [illegible] and dignified. His [illegible] asking points that the broadcast receivers will hear his words clearly.

This spontaneous interruption by KUAN was the first code interference encountered [illegible] Magnus Johnson started his speech at 8:26. This transmission completely blotted out an interesting part of Mr Johnson's speech. The operator on the KUAN should have sent this as a paid message, as it was entirely personal and could in no way be construed as an SOS. An SOS message (service message) is one which pertains to the handling of radio traffic

OLYMPIC ICE SKATING TRIALS AT LEXINGTON OUTDOOR CLUB

STARS WILL DISPLAY SPEED

The skating program arranged by the New England Skating Association in conjunction with the Olympic ice skating trials, which will be staged on the rink of the Lexington Outdoor Club, on the Mohawk Trail in Lexington on Saturday afternoon, includes attractive features.

In the list of specialties will be performances by Norval Baptie and Gladys Lamb of Chicago, world famous exhibition fancy skating pair; Charlie Gorman of St. John, N. B., Canadian entry in the World Olympic skating competition and Canadian national speed champion, Miss Lora Jean Carlisle of Chicago, fancy skating artist "extraordinaire" and Everett McGowan, professional speed star, in acrobatic stunts.

Baptie and Lamb are recognized internationally as the foremost professional fancy skaters in the profession. Baptie is a former amateur champion and held many of his titles for many years. Miss Lamb is a real artiste. Miss Carlisle, in her single exhibition, shows with her complete mastery of all the intricacies of fancy skating.

Gorman will compete against two of the United States Olympic team skaters in a special international three-cornered event.

McGowan turned professional recently. As an amateur he had many titles. In 1923 he defeated Jewtraw and Moore and won both the interstate and international [illegible] at Pittsburgh. In 1924 he defeated Bobby McLean at St. Paul for the world's indoor title. He never has been defeated in a match race. In 1923 he also won the American outdoor professional title. He will give an exhibition of his speed and will add a novelty. He will jump [illegible] side by side on the ice.

Dugan Still on Deck

By TAD

Last week a bunch of stars met to play a four-handed game of pool at John Doyle' parce.

They were to play 100 points, and Doyle paired them off as follows:

Alfred De Oro, the ex-champion, and Jim Corbett vs. Joe Dugan, Yankee star, and Howard Shoemaker, amateur marvel.

It was a hotly contested game and a "goodly crowd was there," as the serial stories say.

The score was 92 apiece when De Oro shot and missed the loose ball, leaving 14 still racked up at the end of the table. Shoemaker, who followed De Oro, found his cue ball behind the 14 balls that were racked up and there wasn't a shot in sight.

Shoemaker looked for a shot and he took in every angle.

Corbett walked up to him and said: "There's a combination there."

Shoemaker looked again and piped, "I don't see it, Jim"

Corbett smiled and piped, "Well, I do."

Shoemaker chirped, "Well, if you see a combination there you're a pip.

Corbett very excitedly yelled, "I'll give you a ball for YOUR SHOT!"

Shoemaker, all hopped up for an instant, said, "You're on."

He marked up a point and Corbett belted the bunch of balls all over the table. They spread all over the joint.

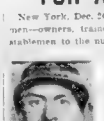
Joe Dugan, who followed Corbett, jumped up with a smile, caulked his cue and got ready to shoot.

"Hold on, young fellow," piped Corbett. "It's MY SHOT. That last shot was Shoemaker's"

Corbett knocked over eight cinch shots and won the game for himself and De Oro.

BRITISH SPORTS COME HOME FOR XMAS

New York, Dec. 20.—British horse men—owners, trainers, jockeys and stablemen to the number of twenty seven—all natives of Canada, arrived here on the liner Bergan garia from London, to spend Christmas in their "Father land." Another large party of similar sporting men was on the President Adams



Steve Donoghue

The Duke of Sutherland, a fancier of racers, and Arthur G. Havers, British golf champion, also were members of the big sporting party.

Percival Throckmorton, in charge of the jolly party, has been training horses in England for eight years. He is a close friend of Steve Donoghue, Britain's most famous jockey who came here to ride Papyrus and met defeat at the hands—or legs—of Zev in October.

"We tried to bring Steve over again," said Throckmorton, "but he came to Indianapolis, season ending for Lord Reading the British Viceroy, and other notables, and compete with native jockeys in meetings at Bombay, Calcutta, Colombo, Delhi, Lahore, Lucknow, Penang and Rangoon.

"Lord George had a lucky year in racing, the most successful for the royal stables since the early days of Edward, and took two [illegible] Lord Derby topped the winning owners. He owned in thirteen horses to win [illegible] races valued at $.95 0. The King sent in twenty-two [illegible] seven nineteen races valued at $28.000.

BETTORS FARED BETTER THAN THE BOOKMAKER

Speaking of betting on English races, Throckmorton said:

"Long shots were conspicuous on British tracks this year, but on the whole the bettors fared better than the bookies

"Thousands of Britishers follow the races, with 90 per cent. of them following 'systems,' while nearly everybody goes into the sweepstakes on big events."

HOPPE RETAINS HIS BILLIARD CROWN

Chicago, Dec. 20.—Willie Hoppe retained his world s title at 18.2 balkline billiards in the play-off with Welker Cochran, California star. The play was for 1,500 points in blocks of 500. Cochran scored 1,181 against Hoppe's 1,500.

Welker Cochran

The Californian cut down the champion's lead in big chunks in the last stage. Cochran amassed a total of 725 points against Hoppe s 500 in the last block.

Hoppe's average was 44 4 34 and Cochran's 34 5 34.

Hoppe's third turn was the most profitable of the match for him. He made 126 and finally missed on a twice across the table shot on the top rail.

There was nothing in the way of balkline that the champion did not display in that spurt. He started with a rail nurse at the head of the table and gradually worked the balls to the foot rail with a pretty exhibition of line nursing.

His judgment of speed something that was an outstanding feature of his work during the first and second [illegible] helped him materially. He made 22 full length drives, 13 masses, six two cushion, two three cushion and one cushion first shot.

The element of luck entered for the first time in the match was on Hoppe's 304th shot his cue ball was kissed against the second object ball and a miss was turned into a point. Hoppe stopped and smiled an apology at Cochran.

At the start of the play in the [illegible] Hoppe showed that Cochran never would get out of trouble. He gathered the ivories but could not hold them together.

The final block did not finish until after midnight. This was due to t great amount of scoring, a total 1,225 points by both players, and t fact that [illegible] several long innings, as much as the first [illegible] blocks combined.

NORTHEASTERN TO HAVE VARSITY ATHLETICS

University athletics will be instituted at Northeastern next September. The Administrative Council has so decided. Athletics of the School of Engineering and of the School of Business Administration will be merged. The university will take over the present athletic organization of the School of Engineering

Major sports that will be assumed by the university are basketball, track and baseball. The minor sports recognized will be soccer and wrestling.

The present teams in fencing, boxing and tennis will continue, although not recognized by the athletic authorities on the university basis.

The possibility of instituting football on a modest scale is being considered, but there is doubt that Northeastern will attempt even a short schedule next year.

The athletic policy will be determined by a faculty athletic committee composed of faculty members of the two schools

Rufus H. Bond

The administration of athletics will be left to a general athletic board composed of the Director of Student Activities of the School of Engineering, at present Professor Joseph Spear, the Graduate Manager of Athletics, at present E. S. Parsons, '21, and the coaches and captains of the university teams.

Coach Rufus H. Bond will have charge of basketball and baseball as at present, and if football is instituted [illegible] teams in that sport.

Professor Joseph W. Zeller and Edward S. Parsons will be the university track coaches.

"The fact is that we have five clubs on our list and will select one to purchase and to use for co-operative purposes," said he. "We want a Class AA club; we want one near at hand, but Columbus and Louisville, for example, are as convenient as Indianapolis. The choice will not be made today, tomorrow or the next day."

BIG CHARITY BOXING SHOW ADDS $3,441 TO BASKET FUND

RECORD IS SHATTERED BY GREAT SUCCESS

By Gill.

Whang!

The Sports Department section of the Boston American's Christmas Basket Fund has crossed its way to a new record.

The total is $6,000+, which is more than 100 per cent more than the Sports Department raised last year. Our total for 1922 was $2,500.

The great charity boxing show conducted by the Armory A. A. at Mechanics Building Basket Fund gave the fund the biggest boom it has received from a single enterprise during the ten years that this wonderful charity has furnished Christmas dinners to children and women who would otherwise go hungry on the greatest of holidays.

The wonderful benefit show at Mechanics Building netted the Fund $3,441.01.

This makes the show one more reason why it was staged for [illegible] Boston.

[illegible] the fans contributed $218.91 more after a stirring appeal by Mayor James M. Curley. This was the largest sum ever secured at a collection during the ten years of the Fund's history. The total was a tribute to the great crowd that attended the bouts as well as to the Mayor's powers of oratory.

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

Changing fashions increase trade.

But changing fashions lately have been restricting trade.

This explains something which has been puzzling manufacturers and others.

Every report and comment on business has been emphasizing the fact that "buying is from hand-to-mouth."

This usually has been interpreted as indicating lack of confidence in the business outlook on the part of retail and wholesale merchants and other buyers.

This is not, however, the correct explanation, the whole explanation.

In the days when fashions changed very suddenly and radically, in the days when smaller communities had less free communication with the rest of the world, in the days when women's magazines did not circulate extensively in every town and hamlet, in the days when working people were not so intent as they are today upon "keeping up-to-date", in the days when there was no adequate parcel post system of delivery—in those days merchants and edit ors cautioned to be guarded in their ordering either a whole year's or a half year's supply of merchandise at one time.

• • •

This practice is no longer considered safe, for merchandise which may be fashionable and in demand today may be unpopular and out of fashion six months or a year from now.

• • •

The possession of automobiles is the number of persons than one for every two families in America has vione more perhaps than any other one thing to change the attitude of country folke towards fashions. They now make frequent visits to towns and cities and there see "the latest," not only in dresses and hats and shoes and coats and furs and jewelry and furbelows, but in furniture, in rugs, in kitchen utensils, in labor saving appliances and, in short, in every line of merchandise. As a consequence, it is no longer easy to palm off out-of-date goods on customers.

Then there is another reason why hand to mouth ordering has been followed.

So many manufacturers and job bers and wholesalers and retailers were caught with a awkwardly large stocks on hand when the boom burst in 1920, and so much financial embarrassment was thus caused, that timidity in making speculative purchases has been the rule rather than the exception ever since then. True, this course was departed from by many a year ago, when a boomlet started and prices began to soar skywards. But this burst was short lived Quite suddenly buyers pulled in their horns and have kept them in ever since.

There has been a lot of complaint over the refusal of buyers to place big orders for future delivery.

The fact is, however, that this course if it has drawbacks also has distinct advantages. It makes for safety, it cuts down risk and insolvencies. It makes for light rather than heavy borrowing from banks. It is to keep in one so long on a more even keel through out the year. Instead of, as for merly one or two rushes, the season followed by idle or semi-idle for terms in the between season periods.

Greatly improved transportation facilities have contributed to the hand-to-mouth system of ordering. Our railroads are now more efficient than ever before, having developed capacity for delivery of more than a million cars of freight over each week's railroad congestion. Motor trucks have gained a tremendously important part in extending facilities for prompt delivery of all kinds of goods. Telegraphy is now used on a scale unknown even a few years ago. Merchants now reserve very freely, also, to delivery by express, and here again there has been marked improvement in promptitude and service.

• • •

So, instead of concluding that hand-to-mouth ordering is good all along the line signifies lack of confidence on the part of buyers and nothing else, due consideration to the facts and factors here mentioned. This may help you to look on "things as they are."

SUPER U-BOAT DESIGNED BY GERMAN

By J. C. SEGRUE.

Copyright, 1923, by Universal Service

Berlin, Dec. 20 (Special Cable)—The biggest and most powerful submarine yet devised has been designed by the famous German naval architect, Professor Oswald Flamm.

The Professor asserts that his boat, with a tonnage of 7,097, has a radius of 23,000 miles. It is 401 feet long, with a 46-foot beam, and is completely stable when submerged.

The decks and sides of the cruising tower are protected by steel armor five inches thick.

I saw the plans of the big submarine at Charlottenburg University, where I interviewed Prof Flamm, who said:

"I have solved the most baffling of navy problems—the stabilizing of heavy submarines. The larger submarines so far built were low at the end of the war, in sub serging often listed to 35 degrees, wrecking the morale of the crew and often leading to disaster.

"I discovered the solution of the difficulty in 1915 and had we known then what we would undoubtedly have won the war.

"My submarine is also invulnerable to aeroplane attack. It carries 8.8 guns with 1,200 rounds of ammunition for each. The vessel carries four torpedo tubes and has the largest submarine heretofore only carried seven.

Prof. Flamm also asserts to have invented a type of submarine that will carry 1,000 mines of one ton each, with an immense radius of action enabling them to operate in any part of the world.

London, Dec. 20.—The London Daily News naval expert, commenting on the sensational German announcement of the invention of a new super submarine, says: "The British navy already possesses a submarine cruiser which in point of speed, armament and other qualities is superior to all but the largest boat so far projected by Prof. Flamm."

ELECTRICITY WILL FURNISH HEAT

Philadelphia, Dec. 20.—Electricity is great measure, will soon replace coal in the heating of the average home, in the opinion of William Spencer Murray, chairman of the superpower survey of Pennsylvania government, who addressed the Chamber of Commerce of Philadelphia.

With the co-operation of the great electric utilities throughout the country he declared, the government would be able to institute new methods of coal and other material, as well as labor, where heat, light and power are concerned.

The general plan is to unify the existing electric plants into one system from which power could be transmitted to every consumer.

15,000 G. A. R. VETS IN HUB NEXT AUGUST

If the boys get the pension increase, and we think that they will, we will have more than 15,000 veterans here at the national encampment next August," said Gen Guy Lord M. Saltzgaber, national commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, at the Hotel Vendome.

The commander is here to complete arrangements for the annual encampment in August, when the blue-clad hosts for the fourth time in the annals of the G. A. R. will pass in review through the historic streets of this city.

"If we don't get the increase," continued Gen. Saltzgaber, "we will have 10,000 or more. They will come from all parts of New England, old boys who seldom get to the encampments in the West, and we will be glad to see them turn out

ANTI-QUACK BILL SOUGHT IN N. J.

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 20 (Universal)—The New Jersey State Board of Medical Examiners will request the incoming Legislature to pass bills imposing restrictions on fake medics' practitioners in New Jersey, following the expose of the "Diploma mills" in Connecticut and New York. The state board has been investigating illegal practitioners.

The board of examiners will ask that a law be passed requiring for the annual registration of persons licensed by them, including doctors of medicine, chiropractors, osteopaths and other healers. Should this proposal become a law physicians would be required to display their licenses in a conspicuous place in their offices.

MOTOR TRUCKS USED TO LOWER SHENANDOAH

Lakehurst, N. J., Dec. 20. (Universal)—After being tied up for twenty four hours to a 173 foot mooring mast, the giant U. S. dirigible Shenandoah was brought down to earth again through the use of pulleys and motor trucks, by one-half of the personnel usually required in such a job.

The ship was taken from its hangar Tuesday about 4.30 o'clock and after circling about the field for an hour passed up to the mast and was made secure. During the night the ship almost circled the mast under the power of its own motors, sometimes reached a velocity of twenty miles an hour, but it was uninjured. The officers and crew stayed on the ship the whole time.

After cutting the airship loose and getting it to within 70 feet of the ground two cables were dropped and fastened to large ropes running through pulley blocks which were in turn attached to three motor trucks. The trucks started to and pulled the ship down slowly. That operation was completed by about 100 men

The test was one of many to be made in connection with the proposed flight to Polar regions

Largest Evening Circulation in New England—December 20, 1923

To Those That Work in the Stores at Christmas Time

It Is a Hard Season, but It Is Also the Season When the Man or Woman Destined to Get Ahead Proves His Ability

Copyright, 1923, Star Co.

For years we have advised Christmas shoppers to do their shopping early, to remember the tired clerks, to be patient and considerate.

Shopping early in the day when the stores are not crowded, when the air is good, and when the clerks are not tired, will help YOU and make your shopping far easier.

Under the best conditions, and with the best employers, the season is hard and painful for all.

The public, thoughtless and selfish, buys in crowds at the last minute. Work enough for ten days must often be done in one. The hours are long, buyers are often insolent and unreasonable. And many hard working men and women feel that honest effort is not appreciated.

The Boston American sympathizes with those that bear the brunt of this season—the workers in the stores.

But here is something for the ambitious young man or woman to remember—this is your chance to prove what is in you, and to get out of the rut.

In dull, easy times almost any clerk is a good clerk.

Moving slowly along the road almost any horse looks like a racehorse and any automobile like a world-beater.

But in the stress of the race, and especially in the last few laps, we know which is the REAL racehorse, which is really the high power car, and which is the man or woman or girl or boy fitted to win in the race of life.

Not only for your employer's sake, but for your own sake especially, AND TO FIND OUT JUST WHAT THERE IS IN YOU, make it your business to accomplish the best possible results this year.

Anybody can be polite with a polite customer; anybody can be patient when there is very little to do.

But the man or woman that will have future success is the one that can say, "I am going through this hard work IN MY WAY. I am going to prove that I have the stamina, the patience AND THE DETERMINATION that outside influences cannot shake.

If the rush of business does not make you lose your head; if the crowd about you does not flutter you; if the foolish impertinence of customers does not make you lose your balance and answer with impertinence just as foolish, although better justified, you are one of those that can hope to win in the real fight for success.

And remember that that success does not always come early. One of the richest men in New York today worked for years in a department store—always working faithfully, knowing that he thus DEVELOPED HIMSELF. He was past forty when his chance came, and he took it, because intelligent work had made him ready. He is richer now than the great firm that used to employ him.

The big store is the greatest business college in the world. The man or woman that cannot lay the foundation of business success in a big department store cannot learn success in business ANYWHERE. That man succeeds who knows how to deal with people of all kinds, how to be patient with all kinds of characters, how to keep his head in the rush—these are exactly the things that the big store teaches.

While you are doing extra work MAKE IT A RULE TO GET EXTRA SLEEP—you can do it if you will. In a crowded store the air is poor at best. Keep your window wide open at night; keep your head well covered up from the draft. Eat slowly, and if you haven't time to eat as much as you want at noon, SLOWLY, wait and eat slowly at the end of the day.

REMEMBER that the only thing you own IS YOUR OWN MIND AND BODY, AND OUT OF THEM YOUR SUCCESS MUST COME.

Remember, also, that your work, whatever it is, is the MENTAL GYMNASIUM in which your mind develops its qualities.

If you do not do your very best you are cheating yourself ten times more than you are cheating your employer.

For those that work so hard, Christmas time is a season to be dreaded. But the man or woman who will can look back to this season of the year as the time when success was established. Good luck to all that TRY.

Raise Lobsters for Claws

As We Raise Geese to Pluck the Down

Copyright, 1923, Star Co.

Please begin by absorbing the following facts:

LOBSTERS are getting scarce.

They cost twice as much as they used to cost.

They will soon become practically extinct, as in France, where they are artificially cultivated, as are oysters, in so-called "parcs."

THE LOBSTER, WHEN SEIZED BY THE CLAW AND UNABLE TO ESCAPE, CALMLY RIDS HIMSELF OF THE CLAW, DROPS IT OFF AT WILL—AND HE SOON GROWS A FRESH CLAW.

Now you know as much as we do about lobsters and their claw-shedding faculty. Learn of our scheme, which is this:

We raise geese, pluck their down—most harsh treatment—and turn them loose to grow more down.

Let us raise lobsters, pluck their big claws, for broiling or for salad, and turn them loose to raise more claws.

Don't shudder at this. It causes the lobster no pain to shed his claw. Make it plain to him that the claw is not to be retained, and he drops it off as you drop your overcoat. He had no blood vessels or sensitive nerves running through his claws. His claw is not like your leg.

How horrible to eat lobsters broiled alive! How pleasant to eat lobster claws fresh broiled—the eater knowing that the lobster which yielded the claw is safe at home with his family, growing another claw, and free from the torture of broiling.

Personally, we consider the eating of lobsters a barbarous thing. The good of the human stomach demands that lobsters die out entirely. But as we know that lobster eaters WILL eat lobsters, and eat them broiled, we feel bound to submit this plan to their mature deliberation.

Plea For Immigrants

Editor Boston American.

As to the stopping of immigration, our boys who went over and fought for democracy are entitled to bring over their relatives, wives, sweethearts, etc., to show them the land of the free for which they fought. Many of these immigrants are either mechanics in their several lines or farmers. The mechanics we can readily use and the farmers can be sent out West, where they will prove an asset to our country. Let us not be too hasty or severe.

"Park Him In Nursery."

Editor American:

I have no criticism to hurl at young Tucker for marrying the fifty-year-old widow; rather I see only the humorous side of it. Can you imagine that couple convincing these customary hard-boiled hotel clerks that they are actually married? Can't you just hear some gruff clerk repiying "How do you get that way? If you have taken this kid to raise, then park him in the nursery until tomorrow morning. The milkman comes at 3." If appearances count for aught, then exit romance. GLADYS TURNER.

DR. FRANK CRANE ON MARTYRS. REAL AND "FAKED"

By Dr. Frank Crane

I HOPE I have a proper respect for the early martyrs. Certainly anyone who is willing to give his life for a principle is a superior being to most of us. I do not wish anything that I may say to be taken as casting the slightest aspersion upon those ladies and gentlemen who preferred to be chewed up by the lions, or roasted to make a Roman holiday, rather than deny their faith, and I have the highest regard for those patriots who allowed themselves to be hung, tortured or imprisoned rather than take off their hats to the flag of the tyrant foe.

But in this wicked world we must beware of imitations. The motto, "Take no substitute," is peculiarly applicable to martyrs. We have fake martyrs, just as we have fake Christians, fake patriots, fake capitalists, fake laborers, fake gentlemen and fake ladies.

These lines are written in the same spirit that actuates the government in sending out a little pamphlet warning people against taking counterfeit money.

In the first place, there are those who put on martyrdom for the purpose of attracting attention. About the strongest passion in the human bosom is the desire to be noticed. We all have it to some degree, but there are those in whom it amounts to an intolerable itch.

Disease Is Widespread

It is observable in children, with the first dawn of consciousness. The well-known and universally familiar "bawl" baby is a fake martyr. The child that stands in the middle of the floor and screams when he is not allowed to have any more cake, and his sister who lies down and kicks her heels and pulls her hair because her mother will not let her go over to Mamie's house and play, are both samples of the genus fakibus martyrum.

And this disease is not confined to infancy. It is widespread among adults.

When you hear the professional labor agitator, or social revolutionist, descanting upon the wrongs of the poor, and the agonies of the poor wage slave, it is hard to resist the suspicion that he is working the martyrdom game.

In fact, when you hear anyone telling what a hard time he has, or how he has been abused, or neglected, it is well to keep your eye wide open. He is probably stepping into the arena calling for the lions.

The Remedy for Fake Martyrs

And if you should notice your child, precious darling, begin to take up the habit of whining whenever his will is thwarted, or sulking when you tell him to do anything, or pouting, or otherwise making a nuisance of himself in order to qualify for the position of tyrant of the house, I do not say that you should inflict corporal punishment upon him. Oh, no, far be it from me to countenance brutality. I only say that there are such things as hairbrushes and slippers, and that the Creator has, in His wise providence, provided each child with a nice soft place to which the above-mentioned implements may be applied without serious danger to health.

In speaking of the hairbrush I do not wish to imply that you should hold it against him. Not at all. You should, as Charlie Case used to say, just kinda put it against him suddenly and take it away.

Repeat as needed.

There may be more efficacious remedies for spurious martyrdom, but I have never heard of them.

Perhaps all this may enable us to get the point of view from which we can understand the apparently unfeeling remark which Bert Leston Taylor once made:

"It has always seemed to me that most martyrs got what was coming to them."

GREEK KING LOSES JOB—NEXT!

By Herbert Kaufman

THE University of California professor, engaged in making a collection of horse specimens, so that our future progeny may become acquainted with an extinct animal, would do well to save space in his museum for a few royal photographs.

Tomorrow will be especially interested in the portrait of men who could once declare, "I am the state," and get away with it.

Such of their descendants as still exercise authority already marvel how grandfather worked the stunt.

George of Greece certainly didn't inherit the formula. Athens has just politely informed him that the country shan't need his further services. Which closes the Danish chapter in Hellenic history.

Lots More in the Bargain Basement

His princely cousins, Waldemar and Eric, are shrewder readers of the times. Dispatches from Copenhagen intimate Waldemar's betrothal to Miss Virgo Green of New York, and Eric's forthcoming marriage to Miss Booth, daughter of a Canadian lumber magnate.

Those who don't want dukes and earls for sons-in-law might consider them as chauffeurs or head gardeners. Study the "want ads" for court activities.

If Tutankhamen's resurrection is appreciably postponed, there mightn't be a crown wearer left on earth to extend fraternal greetings.

The day rapidly approaches when the only kings, that eats can look at, shall be found in mummy cases.

Orthodoxy Everywhere at Bay

The trick of slamming monkey wrenches into legislative programs isn't an exclusive practice. Washington didn't invent any parliamentary tricks, however ably congressional minorities manipulate them.

The Old Guard not only loses the Interstate Commerce Committee plum, but faces prospect of a successful bonus bill and a bitter fight on Mellon's surtax recommendations.

Steam rollers seem out of commission everywhere. Even orthodoxy has its back to church walls. A wave of independent thinking, comparable to Lutheran and Calvinistic revolts, sweeps American pulpits.

The whole universe is in a kaleidoscopic move. A batch of news is so full of thrills and spills that one's likely to miss Prosperity's smile at an eight-billion-dollar farm yield and a two-billion-dollar corn crop.

Youngsters Almost Naked

Editor Helping Hand

My husband has been sick in the hospital for the last year and a half. I have had a hard struggle caring for four children with what little money I could pick up. The poor youngsters are almost naked, and I have darned and patched until there is almost nothing left to put a needle in. The oldest are girls eleven and ten. They are tall and take a size 15. The oldest boy is nine and takes a size 13. The youngest boy is 4½ and takes a 7-year size.

MRS. G. O'K.

Warm Clothing

Editor Helping Hand:

I have two Winter coats, one size 40 and the other size 14; two sport coats, sizes 16 and 18; a pair of pumps, size 6 B width, and a set of brushed wool cap and scarf to match to contribute to the Helping Hand.

MRS. T. J. C.

Thank you. You have been sent the address of M., B., whose family will be very grateful for these things.

Thanks to C. E. H.

Editor Helping Hand:

The editor wishes to express his very sincere thanks to C. E. H. of Braintree. All we know about C. E. H. is that he is very generous indeed, as he sent in five dollars for the Helping Hand Fund.

Things for Baby

Editor Helping Hand.

Received a lovely box of things yesterday for my two children, including coats, bonnets, rompers, dresses, stockings, etc., and a little flannel jacket. I must say the Helping Hand and its kind readers are certainly a great help to the needy. I have a few things myself which will fit a new born baby or one about two months old, such as dresses, pinning blankets, stockings, garters and a couple of small shirts, which my baby has outgrown. I would like to feel that I have helped someone out.

MRS. L. McN.

Thank you. You have been sent the address of Mrs. F. L., who expects a baby soon and has no clothing for it.

SEND THE PRICE OF A DINNER TODAY

Many professional and amateur entertainers have kindly aided the Boston American Radio Fund this year. For which many thanks. But the mainstay of the Christmas cheer that brightens up the homes of the city's poor is the generosity of our readers. There must be many who have not yet sent the price of a dinner, $3.15. We hope and urge that they will do so today. It should be a banner year in the history of the fund. See details on another page.

Food Is a Problem

Editor Helping Hand:

I am the mother of two small children, a boy three and a half and a girl nine months old. Last December I lost a little girl fifteen months old. My husband has not had steady work for the last four months and has not averaged over fifteen dollars a week. Last week he earned eight dollars, and this week up to date he has not earned anything, so that even food is a problem, not to mention clothing. My husband is willing and able to work steady if he can get it.

MRS. M. D. S.

Coat and Shoes Offered

Editor Helping Hand:

Have you anyone on your list who wears a 6A shoe and a 38 coat? If so, I shall be glad to send them at once. I would also like the address of some little girl who could use a few things from Santa.

MRS. F. M. C.

Many thanks. You have been sent the address of Mrs. J. F., who wears size 38, and who has a little girl of three who would be mighty glad to hear from Santa.

Clothes for Girl

Editor Helping Hand

Can you send me the address of some needy girl of from 14 to 16? I have some clothes of my daughter's that she has outgrown.

MRS. A. L. H.

Thank you. You have been sent the address of M. W., who is fifteen years old.

M. C. Given Food

M. C., the mother of two children, deserted by her husband, and badly in need of food, has been sent a goodly supply of good nourishing food, amounting in value to $2.05. The editor wishes again to thank the many generous readers whose liberal gifts to the Helping Hand fund make this kind of help possible.

Boy of 12 Needs Clothes

Editor Helping Hand

Please ask your kind readers if they have any clothing they don't need for a boy of thirteen. He is small for his age. He needs pants and shoes and stockings. He is almost in rags now. I am not able to buy any for him, as I have been sick and my husband has been out of work. He is working now, but every cent goes to pay rent and meet old bills. My husband wears size 6 shoes and size 34 or 36 waist pants.

MRS. A. C. S.

Other Offers

The editor wishes to express his sincere thanks to the following people for their generous offers of assistance to those in need. They have been sent the addresses requested:

STELLA DALLAS By Olive Higgins Prouty

New and Intensely Interesting Serial of a Marriage of an Educated Man to an Untutored Woman

HOW THE STORY STARTED

Stella Dallas and her husband, Stephen, do not live together.[2] They have a daughter, thirteen years old, named Laurel, who stays most of the year with the mother. These two are now at a Summer hotel in New England, where the other guests look askance at the painted, overdressed elder woman. The time has come for Laurel to visit her father in New York. He meets her at the station and takes her to a hotel. She goes to visit Mrs. Morrison. The story now goes back to the marriage of Stephen and Stella at Milhampton. Stella starts a flirtation with Alfred Munn. The leading women of the town begin to drop her.

By OLIVE HIGGINS PROUTY

Author of "Bobbie, General Manager," "The Fifth Wheel," "The Star in the Window," Etc.

THERE were other questions besides those connected with social values to which she didn't know the answers, big questions like what becomes of dead people, and what God is like, and if He really hears you pray, and knows when a bird falls out of a nest, and where babies come from, and what doctors carry in their mysterious leather bags, and how kittens are born, and if there was ever actually a George Washington, and a Polyphemus, and a Jesus Christ, and a Noah, and a Noah's Ark, with a pair of every kind of animal there is in it, even a pair of mosquitoes, and why there had to be a pair.

Laurel never asked her mother questions about big things. She had discovered that her mother always changed the subject ever so quickly if she did. And once she had exclaimed, "Oh, my! Laurel, nice little girls don't talk about things of that sort!"

Until then Laurel had thought that perhaps she might ask her father. He liked talking about big things, about certain big things, that is—like beautiful music, and beautiful sunsets, and how wonderful nature is, and being honest, and a good sportsman, and all that. But Laurel was shy with her father during the short periods she spent with him. She usually listened more than she talked. He always introduced the subjects of their conversations. She'd sooner die in ignorance than to ask him a question that wasn't "nice."

When Helen Morrison caught the timid, butterfly-like creature that Laurel was at thirteen, in her soft deft hands, and cautiously lifted one scooped palm from over the other, as it were, and peered in the dark, domed chamber to see what sort of creature was there, her interest was instantly aroused.

She had never seen a little girl specimen of Laurel's sort—so composed and self-possessed in speech and manner, so at home in smart, up-to-date sports, so familiar with smart, up-to-date beauty-shop secrets—but underneath like a child who has lived on an island, alone somewhere, untold and untaught.

"She's like a book I bought in Florence once," Helen Morrison told Stephen one day, after Laurel had been visiting her. "It's a beautifully bound book, in full leather, and hand-tooled, in old blue and gold. But its pages are blank. I bought it to write old bits of poetry in. Yes. Laurel is a little like that—beautifully finished on the outside, but full of pages as white as snow that never have been written on."

On a small table beside Helen Morrison's bed there was a picture of a little girl whose pages now had never been written on. Often Helen Morrison would take the lovely little miniature of her dead child close to the strong light, and gaze at it hard and long, in a hungry attempt to recall how the soft cheek used to feel when she brushed her own against it, how the limp little body used to melt into her arms when she had it close.

It was a beautiful baby's face that smiled back at Helen from out of the ivory, but it was always a baby's face. That was the pity of it. What would she have looked like to-day? (Oh, never to know. Never to know!) What strength and confidence and beauty would that spark of fine intelligence, shining so steadily in her baby's face, have kindled under her constant caring and tending? What had they both lost—this little daughter and herself, in way of rare companionship and human love?

Sometimes as Helen gazed at the picture, it seemed that she caught a wistful expression in the eyes, as if, now entertained, her little girl had become tired of waiting, waiting, waiting, so long to grow up. It hurt, even after years it hurt Helen Morrison, to feel the stab of her uselessness to this child who had so trusted her. Oh, if she could only do something to rescue her from that eternal loveliness of babyhood—give her back the gift of life again, even though it might hurt her sometimes, even as life had hurt her mother.

"Nice little girls don't ask such questions"

Worshipped Daughter

Helen Morrison had worshiped her gentle, flower-like little daughter. She had been more than just a precious baby to her. She had been a symbol, a manifestation, a gift from the heaven. For years and years Helen Morrison had longed for something feminine of her own. She had had anything feminine of her own. No sister, no mother. Her mother had died when she was born. Her father had never remarried. Helen had been brought up by nurses and governesses, under the strict regime of an elderly and masterful housekeeper.

Helen used to plan by the hour what she would do for a daughter if she ever had one of her own. Even before she thought seriously about marriage, she built air-castles about that little dream-girl of hers. She should have all the joys and delights which her own childhood had lacked.

She should be surrounded, day and night, by feminine tenderness and comprehension. She should have a friend to whom she could her at home, to play with her, or to work with her, to walk and talk with her, or to love pretty clothes with her, or pity wounded hurts with her, or to hold hands with her when it "thundered and lightened."

Later, when life itself seemed to "thunder and lighten" about her, there would also be something lending her hand, reassuring her, making facts look plain and clear, and truth beautiful. How she had ideas about girls and what made for happiness in their lives. She would have filled the blank pages of her little daughter's book full of inspired and lovely things.

When that little girl was born, Helen Morrison had been married several years. She had already had two boys—fine sturdy specimens—but soldier-material, American businessman stuff. When a little girl, a little feminine creature of her own, was placed in the curve of Helen Morrison's arm, she could not speak for joy. It seemed as if a bit of heaven itself had slipped through the clouds. Her cup was full and brimming over. That precious relationship that she had lost so long ago, the day she was born when her mother died, had been given back to her again!

She spent two radiantly happy years with her daughter (Carol, she named her. It became the sweetest word in the English language to her), and then suddenly, with the arrow-like directness of a bolt of lightning from the skies, disease struck straight down into the holy of holies of her heart and killed her darling. By a mere accident the realization of her lifelong hope was broken into fragments—disintegrated into a thousand poignant little memories.

Graceful as Poetry

Her little girl became a dream again, an ideal, a picture on ivory. "There were her boys." That is what people said in way of comfort. Yes, yes. Of course. Thank heaven she had her boys! But, oh, her boys must be made stalwart and bold, strong and tough-muscled. The image she would have modeled out of her little girl clay was to have been as graceful as poetry, as delicate as violin music, as perfect in detail, as fine and exquisite as an etching.

After Carol died, Helen Morrison offered her services to a certain charitable institution for working-girls in New York City. She was living in New York then. She had been living in New York ever since she married. She thought, perhaps, if something of the young and tender ideals she had had for Carol were given to other girls, then everything about her lovely baby would not remain in that state of undevelopment which hurt her so every time she looked at the miniature.

It was soon discovered at the working-girls' home that Mrs. Morrison possessed rare genius with girls. She knew just how to approach them—just how to walk with them. She could hold the attention of a whole roomful of factory hands reading poetry—Browning and Whitman—aloud to them, and telling them what it meant to her.

She could interest a dozen lively little errand girls for an hour at a time, gathered around an ant-hill in adoration, at the edge of Long Island. Frequently she had groups from the home come out from the city during the Summer, and spend a day with her in her garden among the illuminating bugs and bees and flowers.

Talked in Groups

Helen Morrison usually talked with her working girls in groups. She seldom came in contact with the girls individually. That was probably why they failed to satisfy her, why they remained, always simply a worthy charity dedicated to the memory of the little girl beside her bed. It wasn't until Laurel came to spend a week with Helen Morrison that she felt the same heart-stirring which Carol had pulled so hard once long ago, gently touched again. It hurt a little at first—brought back the old pain. But it also brought back a little timid thrill of the old joy and ecstasy.

There was something of the same pristine beauty about Laurel at thirteen as about her own child's crystallized innocence. There were areas in Laurel's soul, as white unsullied, untarnished by experience, unsullied by life. It was almost as if those parts of Laurel had disappeared into a picture also, when she, too, was just learning to walk alone.

Laurel was nearly the same age Carol was. She was dark like Carol. Graver than gay, like Carol. She wore the same sort of clothes Carol would have worn.

CORRECT MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beekman.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Would you please tell me what is the correct size of a visiting card and the proper place to put the telephone number and address.

THE correct size for the visiting card of a lady is from 2¾ to 3¼ inches wide, by 2 to 2¾ inches high. A gentleman's card is from 2¾ to 3¼ inches long, and from 1¼ to 1¾ inches high.

The address should be in the lower right hand corner. The address should be engraved in smaller letters than the name. It is not good form to have the telephone number engraved on visiting cards.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

When asked for a dance, what is the proper thing to say?

(2) When leaving someone that you have just met and he or she says, "I am glad to have met you," what is the proper thing to say?

MISS E.

Thank you.

SAY, "Thank you" only or "Thank you, I should love to dance."

(2) Say, "Thank you. It has been a great pleasure also to meet you. I hope that I shall see you soon again."

It is very annoying to a convalescent or invalid to have the pillow slip down at each move. You can prevent this in a very simple way. Make a pillow-slip that will fit rather loosely over the back of the chair. Put the pillow into the slip and stretch the cover over the chair back. The pillow will stay in place. THE HOUSEWIFE.

WAYS OF A HUSBAND

SEQUEL TO "WHEN A GIRL MARRIES"

By Ann Lisle

"PLEASE hear me out, dear," I begged. "Don't you see that I'd be miserable sitting home empty-handed —just waiting for you to come? I need occupation, Jim. If I had any responsibility at home it wouldn't be so hard. I wanted Phoebe's baby, but you sided against me and let Jeanie take the baby—"

Ann Lisle

"You know I don't like the whining little thing!" interrupted Jim fiercely. "But I can't sit here all night listening to your dramatics. I'm off for a good time."

"And to-night I have to sit and wait for you to—come back to me." I answered quietly. "Suppose that were all my life—sitting and waiting! Jim, don't you see that I couldn't stand it? Don't you see that I couldn't fill my life with ordering from the butcher and playing bridge, and buying clothes and waiting for you? I need some big occupation and responsibility. As long as there are no children in our home, I can't fill my life by staying in it and waiting for you to come back to it—when you choose."

Rosa Again

"Have it your own way," grumbled Jim. "You won't recognize that it's been that way since the beginning."

"You won't recognize that 'women are people' to-day," I replied, trying to strike a lighter note, since the revelation of my feelings hadn't made any impression on Jim.

"Say—don't fake that tone. I recognize genius and am game to let a woman like Ruth express her big gift. But business belongs to men. And I hate to have my wife down there fighting in a man's game as if we couldn't manage without feminine assistance."

"There's Rosa," I began acidly.

Jim turned on me his face cold with fury, and I knew I had blundered.

"That's right, throw it up to me that I need that little minx around my place!" he cried loathing himself into what he evidently deemed righteous rage. "Well, I'm off—but I'll say this, the show has to be a darn sight poorer than I expect to make the rest of the evening a marker on this part of it for unpleasantness. Good night!"

"Jim! Is that how you say 'good night' when you're going off for a pleasant evening and leaving me——"

"Now whimper! That's all I need. I wonder if you'll be cheerful when you're with Ralph. Well, good night."

"Good night." I managed, stifling the retort that Ralph did nothing to make me miserable. For a long time after Jim left me sitting there alone, cold and disappointed because he hadn't even given me a good night kiss, I remained immovable. After a while I stirred and poured myself a second cup of coffee. I felt the need of the stimulant and was willing to risk its keeping me awake—since I hadn't any idea that I could find solace in sleep.

Felt Stirring Terror

Jim and I had touched on big things. But we had ignored them and had sheered off. And with the week-end at Dreamwold looking ahead, I felt a deep and stirring terror. If Jim and I couldn't settle our own problems, how would Virginia settle them for us?

On the morning after Jim left me to a lonely evening while he went to the theatre with Ruth Gregory his manner was decidedly aggrieved. I felt that he was standing my thunder. But instead of getting peevish, I managed to feel a little amused as well as hurt. And I talked along about commonplaces. After a time Jim responded. It was clear that he hadn't enjoyed our discussion of the evening before.

I longed to renew that discussion. I wanted to try again to talk things out with Jim. If we go to Dreamwood for the week-end without coming to a better understanding than we now have, I'm afraid of Virginia's influence over Jim. But I knew better than to force the issue. As Jim didn't want to talk to me at all, I knew he would refuse to go into the matter of my work and his outside interests and where we were drifting as a result of both.

SECRETS OF HEALTH

"I DO AS I PLEASE!"

By Charles A. L. Reed M. D.

"YOUR success begins with self-government," is one of my favorite expressions.

"I do just as I please!" you declare.

"Do you? You mean, do you not, that you absolutely govern yourself?

"That is precisely what I mean.

"Your declaration might be labeled important if true, or meaningless if not. It is rately important as far as true."

Dr. Reed

Much depends upon what you may "please" to do.

Of course you please to do anything that is physically doable, and actually do it—once or for a brief minute. You may jump off a skyscraper, or drink a glass of a moving ocean steamer, or swallow poison or shoot yourself through your alleged brain, but the probabilities are that you will do neither a second time.

You may "please" to do many other things that are less instantaneous and less disastrous in their results.

The things that you "please" to do, if you are to keep on doing them, must first be helpful to yourself and next helpful to others.

The first thing, therefore, that you must please to do is so to govern yourself that whatever else you may do will meet these requirements.

"Man," declared Xenophon, "is the hardest of all animals to govern!"

Why?—the truth of the declaration being conceded.

"To govern," as the ancient philosopher used the term, as it is still largely used, means to subject man to pains and penalties administered by eternal agencies if he does not behave according to prescribed standards.

It seems that these external agencies are used to repress impulses, appetites and passions which, if unrepressed or ungoverned, are damaging to society.

An "animal," in the sense used by the philosopher, is a creature with means sufficiently evolved to adjust his behavior to external influences. When this reaction occurs without intelligence the animal is a brute; when it is done with highest intelligence the animal is a man.

Man is the genus of man and woman, in the sense of mankind, is the most highly evolved of animals.

The natural law has evolved him into a self-governing animal. The reason to which the individual man is a self-governing animal marks his place in the scale of civilization.

It also is relative to his orderly mind to say "orderly"—restience to statutes that are needlessly prescribed to govern him in particulars in which he is governing himself or to force him into behavior that is contrary to the natural law of his existence and of society.

All the wars and all the intellectual conflicts of all the ages have been waged for the attainment of self-government by one side or the other to the conflict.

A man attains the government of himself, by himself, he resents the government of himself by others.

WHAT THE STARS SAY

LUCKY DAY FOR SPECULATION

TUESDAY'S horoscope is not very important. The augury is for the routine course of events, but those in the employment of others may find things pleasant and unfolding for their benefit. It will be a lucky day for speculation.

A child born on this day may be expected to have a rather quiet and uneventful career.

Tomorrow will be an unlucky day for change and travel.

Medbury Says—

By John P. Medbury.

THE soldiers have been waiting so long for their bonus now that most of them have forgotten what they're waiting for.

THE government is stalling it along until the next war so that they can owe us another bonus and pay both of them at once.

WHEN we get it we'll be so old that we'll have to take most of the money and go out and buy ourselves a pair of crutches.

INSTEAD of putting the dough in the bank the soldiers will be able to hide it in their beards.

BUT we won't have to keep it hidden, because no hold-up guy would rob an old soldier ninety years old who had just received his bonus.

EVERYBODY is in favor of the bonus, but nobody is in favor of paying it.

AND those who do want to pay it don't know what to use for money.

IT'S a wonder Grover Bergdoll doesn't write a letter to the treasury department asking them to hurry his check along.

OF course he'll get a bigger bonus than most of us. Look how long he's stayed overseas since the end of the war.

HE wants his bonus before he'll come back.

THERE'S no doubt but what the United States will pay the bonus some day, and it wouldn't hurt to let us have a few samples in the meantime.

ONCE-OVERS

Satisfy your conscience and you need not fear enemies.

Your pride has been hurt—your vanity bruised because someone has said something about you that you do not like to hear.

But why think and think and think about the statement, making yourself and everyone else miserable about it?

A lot of mean things are said about all sorts and kinds of people every day, some true and some untrue.

Haven't gotten the idea that folks must say only the complimentary things, so far as you are concerned, have you?

The person who has no enemies has done very little in this world.

It is not a compliment to say that such and such a person "has not an enemy in the world."

Enemies come naturally as a result of fearlessness, fairness, honesty, high ideals and high principles on your part.

Why should you be unhappy when an enemy says something unkind, if you have done the right thing, in your estimation, and you know the right thing so often makes the erring one turn at the daylight.

You have only one course to pursue in this world, and that is to satisfy your conscience, other things being equal.

Recently I met on a street corner a young girl, who I had been trying to meet for a long while. I had been speaking a few minutes to her and was congratulating myself upon having created quite a favorable impression on her when a garbage wagon hove into sight and the driver, an old acquaintance of mine, yelled out the greeting, "Hello, Charlie, how are you?" exploding my self-conceit and causing me much embarrassment.
